METHODS EMPLOYED IN COMMISSION CAMPAIGN EXPLAINED TO VOTERS

W. H. DOUGHERTY SUBMITS STATEMENT FOR CITIZENS FAVORING CHANGE AND ACCOUNTS FOR CAMPAIGN FUND.

ATTEMPT TO PETTIFOG

On The Part of the Opposition Should Not be Confused With Argument.—Wilcox Has Given Arguments, Abuse Is Not Necessary.

W. H. Dougherty in behalf of the committee of citizens who voluntarily organized or the support of the campaign for the commission form of government or the city of Janesville, in a statement addressed to the voters, explains exactly who is behind the movement and why, and from what source their funds have been raised.

The communication was deemed necessary to explain away some of the misunderstanding and confusion which has been woven around the question by the opposition, and in order to distinguish between pettifogging and argument, truth and abuse, it is given below:

To The Voters:

So much has been said and written upon the proposed change in our method of doing Municipal business that one hesitates to further lumber up the record, but there are a few things that seem to call for particular treatment.

First, Who are we that favor the change and where did we get our money. The campaign for the new form of government has been handled by a committee of citizens, who have nothing in view but the good of our city and no corporation, public or private, has furthered it in the slightest degree. We got our money from the people, in sums ranging from twenty-five cents to five dollars, no corporation, public or private contributing so much as a nickel to the movement. I have the list of contributors in my office where it can be seen by any one who doubts my word. The people who have carried this opportunity to the voters of Janesville are all known to the voters and their personal disinterestedness is plain to all.

The so called campaign committee is composed of the following men: John Peters, Albert Schaller, Fred Sheldon, C. J. Hendricks, F. S. Winslow, J. S. Fifield, Jesse Earle and the writer, and these men collected the fund from voters who believe Janesville will profit by a change of system. By way of further particulars it may be well to add that we collected $324.50, and could have had as much more if necessary.

A lame effort has been made to connect this proposition with the Water Company, but that falls of its own weight when you consider that the Water Company is under State supervision and can neither be hurt nor benefitted by the present Council nor the new form if adopted. There is only one utility in the city under city service contract and that is the Electric Company. I haven't heard it said that this Company favors the change.

I am not indulging in argument in favor of the proposed change, for in my judgment Mr. Wilcox made all the necessary argument, but I am endeavoring to explain away the prejudice which its opponents have attempted to create. I am endeavoring to bare the horrible conspiracy which has been laid against the "rights" of the people by the Night Riders who favor the change. We have no organization except the voluntary service of citizens who seek to do something for the city in which they make their homes.

We who have devoted some time to this movement were greatly surprised to find out that we had been suddenly been read into the Prohibition Party. This allegation is too silly for even the small attention I have given it. There has been no politics in this movement and in passing I might say that the adoption of the new form will clean our city business of politics forever. Democrats, Republican and Socialists will vote as men, for men, and not as units of a Party, with no local issues.

The best joke out is the charge, alleged to have been made by a prominent business man opposing the change, that the result of adoption will be a new fire engine house costing $150,000.00. Personally I have no appetite for fancy engine houses and have heard of no one suffering from that mania.

Another fine piece of pettifogging is the attempt to confuse the new form of government with the State Tax Commission. Why didn't they compare it with the Peace Commission, the analogy is just as accurate. This looks like a squawk from a lost cause. When a man commences to misrepresent and pettifog he usually feels solid ground slipping out from under him.

I have attempted to explain some of the hue and cry that has been raised against this movement. Loose statement handled about persistently, soon assumes the character of argument unless it is refuted. Wilcox coopered up the argument and I want to gather in the loose ends of abuse and make a neat bow out of them.

We are not ascribing motives to the opposition. They have a right to their opinions in a free country like ours. We have proposed this change honestly and above board, without criticism or abuse and with an eye single to the interest of our town.

Don't confuse argument with abuse and when you go to the polls next Tuesday ask yourself this question. Why shouldn't I vote for the change? There is only one answer. You should.

W. H. DOUGHERTY.

DYNAMITE WRECKED PUEBLO BUILDINGS

Terrific Explosion In Heart of City This Morning Does Large Amount of Damage.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Pueblo, Colo., Jan. 19.—A terrific explosion of dynamite today practically wrecked the Colorado Laundry, in the heart of the business district of this city, and damaged the office of the Globe Express Company.

City detectives who immediately began an investigation found a dynamite fuse in the alley outside of the express office.

The police are now working on the theory that the explosion was due to labor troubles and was the work of men who do not live here. The laundry one of the largest in the west is a non-union plant. It is believed the object was to destroy a large tank used as a water softener. When this was being erected several years ago, it mysteriously toppled over one night. No clue ever was found as to the cause The tank was erected by a Chicago Heights, Ill., concern.

ITALY IS PREPARED FOR DECISIVE BLOW

IS CONCENTRATING TROOPS AND SUPPLIES FOR CAMPAIGN.—PEACE MAY PREVENT.

REBELLION IN TURKEY

Conditions in Macedonia and Throughout Empire Reported Unbearable and Uprising Is Expected.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tripoli, Jan. 19.—The military situation in Tripoli during the last month has, to all appearances, not undergone any change. All the fighting that has occurred has been begun by the Turks who have repeatedly attacked the Italian troops at different points and just as often been repulsed.

Time as an Ally.

As a matter of fact, however, the Italian commanders have been using time as an ally. They have been busily engaged in going over the position held by their troops and preparing for an advance into the interior.

Transportation facilities, on an enormous scale have been gathered here and material for the construction of a railway into the desert is arriving in large quantities.

May Declare Peace.

The only possible danger to the plans of the Italian staff being offset is that peace may be declared at an early date.

The Arabs do not understand the reason for the Italian delay and are impressed with an idea that the Italian army is unable to encounter effectively the insignificant number of Moslems opposing it.

Under the circumstances, though, even the Turkish troops being withdrawn, the Moslems are determined to continue the fight against the Italians.

Ask Intervention.

Constantinople, Jan. 19.—The commission of inquiry sent by the government to investigate the conditions in Macedonia shortly after the recent dynamite outrage in that region, have reported that the greatest dejection is manifested by the people.

They have sent, according to a report of the commission, a secret petition to the foreign powers asking for intervention.

Uprising Expected.

Assassinations are multiplying day by day, and dynamite outrages everywhere are on the increase. Even officers of the Turkish army are unable to hide their gloom.

Everywhere the people speak of a general uprising which, if it does not occur immediately, will take place in the spring.

The conditions are due to the presence of officials who are utterly unworthy of the confidence the Turkish government has placed in them.

CHINA AS REPUBLIC SEEKS RECOGNITION

CIRCULAR LETTER TO POWERS TO PREVENT DISASTROUS INTERREGNUM.

MANCHUS NEGOTIATING

President Sun Yat Sen Holds Republic as Best Government For China and Will See to Its Installation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Nanking, China, Jan. 19.—The republican government today sent an appeal to the Powers for recognition. This took the form of a circular letter which was sent to Washington, Tokio, London, Paris, Berlin and St. Petersburg, and was signed by Wang Chung-Wei, the foreign minister of the republican cabinet.

The terms of the circular are as follows:

"The Manchu government having entered into negotiations with the Republic of China for the purpose of abdicating its entire sovereign rights, powers and privileges, we fervently pray for recognition in order to avoid a disastrous interregnum.

Signed WANG CHUNG-WEI,
Foreign Minister."

These demands which were telegraphed today to Premier Yuan Shi Kai at Peking, are very drastic and substantially are as follows:

First—The abdication of the throne and the surrender of the sovereign powers are demanded:

Second—No Manchus may participate in the provisional government of China;

Third—The capital of the provisional government cannot be established at Peking.

Premier Yuan Shi Kai cannot participate in the provisional government of China until the republic has been recognized by the foreign powers, and the country restored to peace and harmony.

Today's decided action by the republican government is due to Premier Yuan Shi Kai's demands that Dr. Sun Yat Sen resign the presidency, permitting Yuan Shi Kai to exercise sovereign powers until the national convention, which is to be called to decide on the form of government for China, shall have reached a conclusion.

In the meantime, Premier Yuan Shi Kai desires the court to retire temporarily, transferring its powers to him. The court, however, objects to leaving Peking until the national convention has reached a decision.

The ultimatum, according to the republican leaders, is the last word of the republicans. President Sun Yat Sen said today to the Associated Press:

"I have taken an oath to oust the Manchu rulers and restore peace to the country before resigning.

"I have taken an oath to establish a republic in China and if I consented to the proposition laid down by Yuan Shi Kai I should be foresworn.

"I am convinced that a republic is not only practical, but that it would be the best thing for China. China cannot permit outsiders to dictate her form of government."

TURKS AND ARABS MAKE ATTACKS ON ITALIAN COLUMNS

French Steamer Carry Turkish Nurses Arrested by Italian Destroyers.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Tripoli, Jan. 19.—A terrific attack was made yesterday by a large body of Turks and Arabs on an Italian column which was on the march about ten miles from the town of Tripoli.

The Italian troops left Tripoli early in the morning on the way to Ghirgarish, a small oasis, situated about ten or eleven miles along the coast to the west of the town and surrounded by a number of forests which hitherto have been giving shelter to Arab irregulars.

Suddenly, as the soldiers were marching along the run which runs parallel to the coast, they were attacked by a large force of Turks and Arabs.

The Italians immediately took the position and threw up field entrenchments. The enemy continued its attack throughout the day. Details of the losses have not been reported.

Seize Steamer.

The steamship company declared the "Manouba" was not carrying contraband of any kind. In spite of this the vessel was arrested and taken to Caglairi in Sardinia. The Italian officers who effected the seizure of the "Manouba" professed to believe that Turkish officers were on board disguised as nurses.

OVER-SEA RAILROAD TO KEY WEST READY

COMPLETION WILL BE OBSERVED BY GREATEST CELEBRATION IN FLORIDA.

ENGINEERING TRIUMPH

Nearly Thirty Islands Used For Short Stretches of Construction.—Six Miles of Arch Viaducts.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Jacksonville, Fla., Jan. 19.—The arrival in Jacksonville tomorrow of several parties of diplomats, financiers and public officials, including practically the entire membership of the Rivers and Harbors Committee of congress, will set the machinery in motion for the biggest celebration in the history of the state of Florida. The celebration, which will continue over several days, will be in honor of the completing of the Florida East Coast Railway Company's line connecting the mainland of the United States with the island city of Key West.

The construction of the "railroad over the sea," which is the name familiarly applied to the new line, is regarded as one of the greatest engineering triumphs of the age. The project of building the line from the tipend of the Florida peninsula to Key West, using the long stretch of coral reefs as stepping-stones, was first conceived about seven years ago. Henry M. Flagler, the chief promoter of the enterprise, supplied the millions of capital necessary and the best engineering talent in America furnished the ingenuity and skill that have made the road an accomplished fact.

Nearly thirty islands were used for short stretches of construction, the longest being sixteen miles, on Key Largo. More than fifty miles of earth and rock embankment were built where the intervening water was shallow. Where deeper water prevailed and where the openings were exposed to storms, concrete arch viaduct construction was used, consisting of fifty-foot reinforced concrete circular spans and piers, with occasional spans of sixty feet. This was the most difficult part of the work. There are four of these arch viaducts, aggregating about six miles in length.

The longest is between Long Key and Grassy Key, 2.7 miles, and is called the Long Key viaduct; across the Knights Key channel, 7,300 feet, and across Bahia Honda channel 4,950 feet. The material of the islands is coraline limestone. In many places the embankment for the roadway is eight or nine feet in height, and the roadbed is ballasted with the same material. The result is one of the finest and safest railway roadbeds in the world.

The building of the concrete viaducts was one of the most interesting features of the entire project, not only because of the size of the larger ones, but by reason of their location. They were constructed literally on the open sea. In many places where the water is deep enough to float a large-size ocean steamship, and where the locality is exposed to the gales of the Atlantic, much of the work was done by floating plants, where the concrete was mixed and placed in position by means of powerful boom derricks. In the shallower water molds for the foundation of the viaduct were formed by driving piles, which held in place watertight framework. The total length of the oversea extension is 127 miles.

The first through train to Key West will leave this city Sunday noon and will carry Mr. Flagler and a party of friends. A second train will follow closely with the members of congress and other officials invited to participate in the celebration at Key West. Elaborate entertainment for the visitors has been provided in the island city. Among the features of the program will be a big civic, military and naval parade, a ball and banquet and official receptions at the military and naval posts on the island. The fifth division of the Atlantic fleet, consisting of the cruisers North Carolina, Washington, Salem and Birmingham, is at Key West for the celebration. Portugal has sent one of the vessels of her navy and several other foreign powers are expected to be represented.

The completion of the overseas line is an event of national and even international importance. It gives the United States a new seaport far out in the Gulf, affording a great improvement on the country's strategic position in relation to Cuba and the Panama canal. Key West, with the opening of the new road, becomes the United States port nearest to Colon; 495 miles nearer than New Orleans and 600 miles nearer than Galveston. It has today one of the most important naval stations in the country and President Taft has already expressed the hope that congress will provide for the very considerable enlargement of the post. Commercial as well as strategic advantages are to accrue from the completion of the road. A modern drydock and ample wharves are to be constructed. As the distance from Key West to Havana is only ninety miles, the transportation of freight by means of powerful steam ferries is entirely practicable, and the trip can be made in about six hours.

THE LYRIC

Thackeray's Great Story, in Three Reels, Shown Saturday

Amelia Sedley, accompanied by her chum, Miss Becky Sharpe, returns from boarding school. Becky is a natural born flirt, who makes a conquest with almost every man she meets. Bashful Joseph Sedley falls desperately in love with her and becomes her devoted slave. He takes her to Vauxhall Gardens, where he makes an ass of himself, is very much ashamed of his conduct refuses to keep his appointment with Becky the next day, sailing for Scotland to escape her wiles. Becky is very much piqued at the loss of so desirable a "catch" as Joseph, and manifests her chagrin in a display of temper, to which she gives vent by tearing up Joseph's note.

Amelia with her gentle sweetness, hands Becky a letter from Sir Pitt Crawley, requesting her to repair to Queen's Crawley at once. She makes preparations to leave without delay. The next morning bright and early she takes her departure to enter Sir Pitt's household as a governess, where she meets Rawdon Crawley, youngest son of Sir Pitt, who falls captive to her charms, bringing upon himself the displeasure of the whole Pitt family, being left out of his aunt's will. He, notwithstanding this, marries Becky.

After the marriage of Becky Sharpe and Rawdon Crawley, they take up elegant lodgings at Mayfair. Rawdon, who is a captain in the English army, is resplendent in his uniform. They are visited by their military friends, among whom is the susceptible Lieutenant Osborne, who is fascinated with the unscrupulous Mrs. Crawley. Captain Dobbin, kindest and sincerest of friends, is there with Amelia Osborne and her husband.

A week later they sail for Brussels. On board ship Osborne can see nothing but Mrs. Crawley. At Brussels they attend a ball given by the Duchess of Richmond, at which Becky meets the Marquis of Steyne and where they receive notice of the battle of Waterloo. At this announcement all is excitement and the officers are soon on their way to the scene of action, where Lieutenant Osborne is killed. Captain Dobbin, who has always loved Mrs. Osborne, immediately offers, on his return to Brussels, his respectful assistance to the young widow. A month after the battle Becky Crawley turns to the ensnaring of Lord Steyne, who with crafty and villainous intent, lays siege to the overthrow of Captain Crawley in order that he may continue his alliance with his wife. Crawley gets heavily in debt at the gaming table of Lord Steyne, is unable to pay, and the unscrupulous Lord throws him into prison, giving himself and Becky a clear field to enjoy themselves in each other's company.

Colonel Rawdon Crawley, in prison for debt, writes a note of appeal to his wife to raise money to secure his release. She replies falsely that she is sick in bed and will implore Lord Steyne to show Rawdon leniency, carrying out her deception still further by signing herself "Yours affectionately, Becky." Upon receipt of this note, Rawdon, in despair, sends to his brother, Sir Pitt, for assistance. Sir Pitt hastens to his brother's succor and makes him a free man. Rawdon immediately goes to his wife's apartments and finds her in the company of Lord Steyne, whom he throttles and throws helpless to the floor, leaving Becky forever.

Major William Dobbin marries Amelia Osborne, whose husband was killed at Waterloo. Amelia and Major Dobbin learn of Becky's downfall and their hearts are touched. They visit her in her poverty and find her dissipated, but unconquered. She refuses aid from Mr. and Mrs. Dobbin, and they leave her to her wayward-ness and folly.

JUDGE KEELER FINDS SOME EXCEPTIONALLY FINE SPECIMENS IN NUMEROUS CLASSES.

OVER 1,300 ENTERED

List of Number of Birds in Various Classes Shows Fine Lists—Big Attendance Today.

(By F. J. Holt.)

The attendance at the show yesterday was a record breaker. Large crowds of visitors were present from Edgerton, Evansville, Whitewater, Milton, Beloit, Brodhead, Monroe and other cities nearby. Many of those who attended did so for the purpose of buying eggs and fowls for the coming spring. A large number of Black Orpingtons were sold for the breeding yards of the Monroe fanciers. Jefferson parties were the largest purchasers of Barred Rocks while many White Leghorns were disposed of.

High Scores Noted.

Most of the awards were up this afternoon and score cards are ready for the exhibitors. Some very high scoring birds were noted. One White Wyandotte scored 96 points. He was an excellent bird and almost perfect in color. The 2nd prize S. C. Brown Leghorn Cock was a beauty. Although he won only second place he was the best Brown Leghorn in the show room. His comb was frozen badly making it necessary to cut it 5 points and that is the reason that he did not win first. In back color he was perfect.

The first prize S. C. W. Leghorn cock was a bird that had been at the head of the breeding pen of D. W. Younge, Monroe, N. Y., and eggs from that pen were sold at $1.00 each this last spring. He is owned now by W. H. Ashcraft.

Exceptional Birds.

In Buff Wyandottes there are two hens that the judge said were the best that he has handled this year and that they were fit to show at Madison Square Garden. They have the best color of any buff birds that we have ever seen.

In Barred Rocks Mrs. R. D. Warner won the largest number of prizes, as usual.

Six pullets belonging to H. L. Maxfield, were fine in color but because of not being up to weight they were not in the winnings. Judge Keeler made the statement that they were the best pullet breeding females in the Rock class.

First pullet, won by Wm. McVicar, was anexceptionally well barred bird every bar being clear and she was barred to the skin.

Interest Is Shown.

Many Janesville people who had never though that they would go to a poultry show, were at the Rink yesterday. Those who attended were almost unanimous in the statement that they had no idea of the enormity of the business. Although many came to spend a half hour or so they found that they could not leave in that time as the fowls were too fascinating. As they stood in front of the coops and listened to the various poultrymen tell of this bird and that they were astonished at the revelations. Because of this great interest it was hard to get through some of the aisles at certain hours the crowds being very large.

Today and tomorrow the attendance will be the largest of the week. As tomorrow is the last day I urge that all take a half hour for the poultry show. This will give you something worth going to see and it will help the finances of the exhibition. As the poultry business is one of the leading institutions of our city lets patronize it and show our loyalty to that work which is bringing large returns to our markets.

Number of Fowls.

The classes with the number of birds in each class is as follows:

An effort will be made to print the complete list of awards in the issue of tomorrow evening. The decision in Barred Rocks was made yesterday afternoon but not until the cards had been worked upon for a long time. Many of the birds that were not placed in this class were but a quarter of a point behind the winner. This shows what a strong class there was. The same thing is true of the Red classes.

Judge Keeler has given such excellent satisfaction that he has been engaged for next year's show. There will be a second judge selected, as the Janesville show is too large for one man to score, in the time that is allowed.

MASTER MECHANIC SENDS ASSIGNMENTS AND NOTICE

Egineer P. C. Cobeen has been assigned to the 446 and 433, subject to the return of A. A. Van Bryck.

J. S. Foren and J. Niland have been appointed as engineers on the putting up coal job at North Fond du Lac.

Master Mechanic E. Becker writes that applications will be received at the office of W. S. Whitford, division foreman at North Fond du Lac, Wis., until noon, January 22, for the following positions:

One engineer on 224-217.
One engineer on 437-438.
One engineer on 416-432.

Master Mechanic Becker also writes the following to all engineemen:

"My attention has ben drawn to the fact that firemen are leaving the standpipes partly open after they have taken water and also that the standpipes are not shut off in time to prevent the tanks from flowing over and in severe cold weather you can imagine what we are up against. At those points where water is taken it is very nearly impossible to start a train. I hope that each and everyone will try to do all he can to eliminate this trouble."

Superintendent Vilas also writes concerning this practice which leaves a number of icy hillocks and knolls upon which a trainman dismounting is liable to receive serious injury or to be thrown under the wheels.

N. L. CARLE APPEAL IS BROUGHT BEFORE BOARD OF REVIEW

Asks Reduction in Valuation of Residence Assessed at $20,000—Real Estate Men Give Testimony.

The appeal of N. L. Carle for a reduction in the valuation of his residence, 515 St. Lawrence avenue, from the assessment at $20,000 by the tax commission assessors, was made to the Board of Review this morning. His attorney, M. G. Jeffris, conducted the cross-examination of witnesses in his behalf, and H. V. Cowles, for the assessors.

Mr. Carle was the first to take the stand. In reply to the question of his attorney as to what he would estimate the value of his home with the owner ready to sell and a purchaser able and willing to buy, he replied that he did not believe that it would sell for more than $15,000 at the outside, and that he would not consider it an asset of more than $10,000. He was perfectly willing to sell at $20,000 and much less. His objection to the assessment included those on both house and lot.

Real Estate Men Testify.

Three Janesville real estate dealers, Frank L. Stevens, David W. Watt, and Charles L. Cleland, were sworn and cross-examined as to the value of the same piece of property. Mr. Stevens declared that, judging by sales, both recent and old, made in the same vicinity, he did not think the Carle property would bring more than $13,000. The Ogden Fathers property across the street, which he thought was equally valuable, had been sold for $10,000.

Mr. Watt claimed that he had sold property all around it but none were as valuable as the Carle house. He estimated its value at from $12,000 to $14,000. He and Mr. Cleland, who testified later, declared that he knew of no residence property in Janesville ever selling for more than $10,000. As instances of what some of the most valuable property in the city had sold for he gave the sale of the General Doe property for $6,000, and the Anson Rodgers property to George McKey for $6,000.

C. P. Beers was also called upon to testify.

The questions put to the witnesses by Mr. Cowles were as to their knowledge or opinion of the value of other similar property in the neighborhood, the figures of sales, if any, interior finish of the houses, heating, number of bath-rooms, cost of construction, kind and value of improvements and remodeling, and others of like nature.

The number of complaints made to the board have been increasing from day to day but in the aggregate they have been few and less than was anticipated. None of the manufacturing corporations have yet formally filed objections to their assessments, and the valuation of Mr. Carle's and Mr. Jeffris's property are by far the largest protested.

The hearings have had their share of humorous incident exhibited in some of the requests made for reduction in assessments.

One citizen appeared before the board and demanded that the assessment on his horse be reduced from $25 to $5. He was asked if the horse was worth $25.

"Yes, answered the citizen, perhaps he is, but if I tried to sell him I could not get five dollars for him. He is thirty years old and has been off the tax roll for eight years. I only use him about twice a week and never work him hard."

"Well," said the questioner, "Don't you think he will live until next May?"

"He is just as liable to die next week."

Mr. Citizen seemed very much in earnest, although if he had won his point he would not have been ahead more than twenty-five cents.

Another taxpayer complained that the assessment on his property, $1,800, was too high. On being questioned what he had paid for it he replied that the price was $1,800, and also admitted that he had painted it twice and made sewer connections since buying it.

A third man told the assessors that he paid $2,100 for his house, and the contractor who built the house testified a short time later that the house cost $2,700.

Board Adjourns Until Monday.

At the close of its session this afternoon the board will adjourn until two o'clock next Monday. It hopes to complete its work by the middle of next week.

RECORD CROWD WILL GREET PRODUCTION

"Louisian Lou" Company Arrived In City This Morning for Appearance at Myers Theater Tonight.

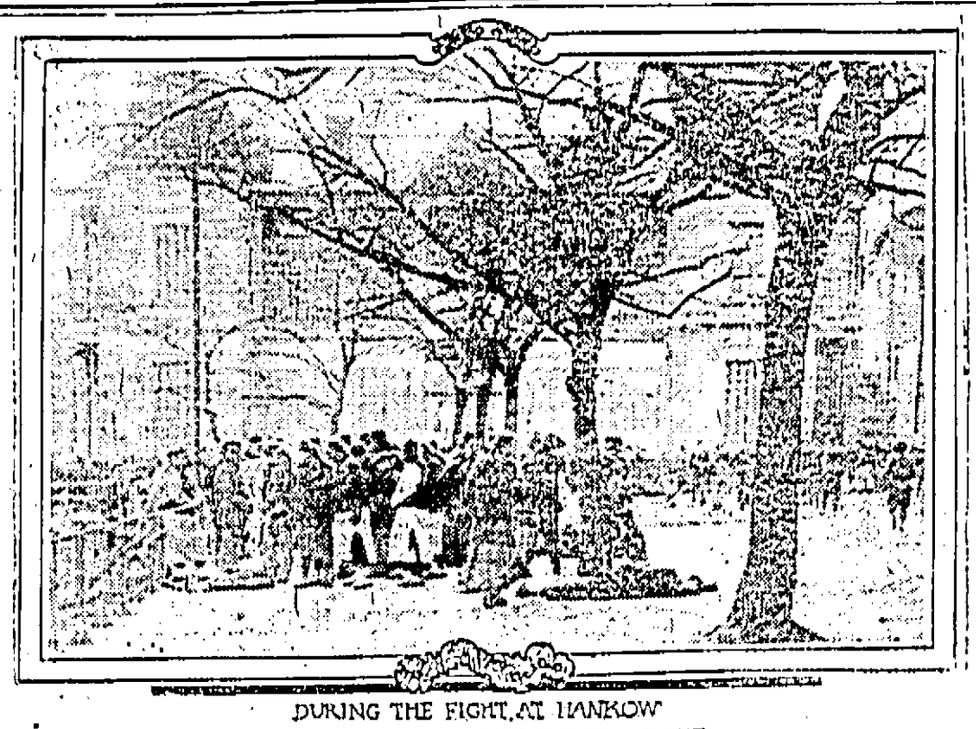

Every seat in the Myers Theater had been sold at one o'clock this afternoon for the metropolitan comic opera production, "Louisiana Lou," which appears here this evening. The company arrived in the city this morning from Rockford and will leave tomorrow morning for Madison. Milwaukee and Racine are other cities in the state that will be visited by the company.

The fame of this production which has had a record run of two hundred nights at the La Salle Theater in Chicago, is partially due to the fact that it is one of the Harry Askin successes, and that it is one of the sunest musical comedies which has been produced in America during the present season.

Miss Letha Dreyer, formerly of this city, is a member of the troupe which appears here this evening. She has been a student at a dramatic school and has many friends in Janesville who will be in the audience tonight.

EXPERT OPINION.

Under the caption, "Telegraph Ownership," the Wall Street Journal proceeds to give an expert opinion relative to the proposed plan of Postmaster General Hitchcock as to the government ownership of the telegraph. Of course the Wall Street paper is in a position to learn first hand what the big interests of the country think of the plan and it is interesting to note it is opposed to from stem to stern. Its objections are voiced as follows:

"From the financial point of view, Postmaster-General Hitchcock's proposal that the government shall purchase and operate the telegraph lines can hardly be taken seriously. Wireless telegraphy is rapidly usurping its place, and in the course of a comparatively few years the poles and wires which constitute the property for which the government will be asked to pay may have to be sold for firewood and junk.

"A petty success on a $200,000 proposition in Alaska, where the government itself does most of the telegraphing, will have to be offset by the experience of Great Britain, where the taxpayers have had to furnish $175,000,000 to make good the losses incurred by the governmental assumption of what, in every essential characteristic, is and should continue to remain a private enterprise. To take over the telegraph means of necessity to take over the telephone. This has been the result in Great Britain and other countries; it will inevitably lead to the same result here. Already the telephones are absorbing the telegraphs. These combined properties bear now a nominal valuation of two to three billions. Is it seriously proposed that the government shall purchase them?

"Viewed financially, the proposal is to be condemned on other grounds besides that of buying a decaying property at a colossal price. The postoffice department is itself a financial failure, and every year costs millions of dollars more than its revenues cover. Mr. Hitchcock blames this upon the cent-a-pound law for third-class matter, which he claims is the exercise of a costly and unjust favoritism to a certain class of publications. Assuming this to be true, when the telegraph, like the postal system, is subjected to political power, what is to prevent it being similarly abused?

"In private hands the telegraph system, encouraged by profit and stimulated by rivalry, has progressed from a single invention to thousands; from land lines to ocean cables; from expensive messages flashed between the control offices to cheap messages now telephoned from house to house; and from the costly cable to the Hertzian waves. Experience warns us that when it falls into the inept hands of bureaucracy we shall have seen the last phase of its wonderful progress."

MOTION PICTURES.

England has taken an advanced step in its teaching of its growing generation of citizens. The introduction of motion pictures in its schools is an innovation and the following dispatch from London tells how it is to be accomplished and the results expected.

"The cinematograph is to be introduced into the schools, and a high official of the education department expresses himself greatly in favor of this up-to-date innovation. He believes that the cinematograph will shortly be recognized officially, and grants will be arranged both in day and continuation schools.

"One of the difficulties in the way of its introduction is the already overloaded curriculum. The board of education will have first to clear away all the growths which have crept into the system, which has allowed head teachers, and his majesty's inspectors, to crowd subjects into the work, until the over-burdened child is incapable of taking more, or even properly digesting what is now put before it.

"Geography in the future will be one of the most fascinating subjects to a child, when New York, Peking and Lassa are not merely names, but are places seen, with people actually moving up and down in their streets. This first step of the new education department will, doubtless, be hailed with delight by thousands of teachers and students. Mr. Selby-Bigge, the new permanent secretary, can inaugurate his tenure of office in no better way."

THE COMMISSION PLAN.

On Tuesday next the citizens of Janesville will vote whether they will adopt the commission form of government or reject it. Two years ago a similar vote was taken on the same subject and the main objection then was the lack of the recall. This has since been added to the law and now the opponents are having hard work to find some new excuse to fight the proposed change.

The Gazette has thrown its columns open to the public for discussion of the subject and has endorsed it editorially. It has no axes to grind in the matter, is not interested or owned by any public utility, has no special candidates to boost for office, or pet projects to "put over." It seeks only what it believes to be the best interests of the citizen as a whole.

The Gazette does not seek to antagonize class against class, labor against corporations, and firmly believes that the working man will have a better run for his money than will the corporation owners who seek to control present politics for some motive best known to themselves, if the commission form passes.

However, the vote will be taken on Tuesday and we all will have to go on living here after it is over just the same. Personalities and inclinations are displeasing to the average reader and should not be indulged in a contest that is purely one which seeks only the best result for the city of Janesville and its future welfare in which all citizens should be vitally interested.

So the senate will decide today that Senator Stephenson was not guilty of buying his seat in the senate from the Wisconsin legislature by corrupt methods. They will, however, report the Wisconsin primary law is a very costly affair, as we all know.

Milwaukee business men have advised Governor McGovern to call an extra session of the legislature to consider the Black River Falls conditions. It is really a state affair and should be handled as such.

What goes up must come down, is an old saying, but evidently butter and eggs have forgotten this is true. Perhaps they have discovered some means to evade the law of gravitation.

Warm weather has its disadvantages in that it does not give the average property-owner an opportunity to thaw out ice gorges in his water pipes.

Perhaps Mr. Wilson knew what he was about when he asked Mr. Harvey to stop boosting his presidential candidacy, but Brother Watterson did not.

President Taft has had his say on the high cost of running the national government in his recent message that was very pat and to the point.

Cuba has decided to be good and not have Uncle Sam send any armed policemen down there to teach them how to behave.

Even the most haughty has to take the weather handed out despite the fact they want something just a little bit different.

One New Jersey girl baked a cake and used varnish instead of molasses. Monkey and cat dinners are much safer.

ON THE SPUR OF THE MOMENT

THE POLITICAL BANQUET.

Upon this momentous and long-looked for date,
The easy ones ante two dollars a plate.
To listen while various statesmen orate,
And save the poor tottering old Ship of State.
Its lucky for them that they go not to eat
The menu is not what you might call replete,
The neck of a chicken is considered a treat.
The banqueters just sit and shuffle their feet,
And wait for the big guns to boom.

The gay speaker's table is surely a sight,
For all the boys wear their shirt fronts that night,
The dress suits of course, do not always fit right;
The borrowed ones are most too loose or too tight,
But the general tone is immense.
The hours wear on slowly, they pass 'round the smokes,
The toastmaster rises at last and he pokes
At the crowd a large bunch of the Joe Miller's jokes,
It is his occupation to tickle the folks
For the gloom in the place is intense.

And then comes the speaker, O rapture! O joy!
They use the pat phrases you heard when a boy.
The time-honored gestures they always employ
The tyrannt and despots they gally destroy
And wave the old flag yore.
Their mission among you they freely relate,
They're with you that night just to preserve the state,
They save it with the wind that doth never abate,
You save it by paying two dollars a plate,
As you have done often before.

You wend your way home by the dawn's early light,
For your native land you've put up a good fight,
Of course, you've got to be somewhat polite
And say that the banquet that night was all right,
Though it gave you a three-cornered pain.
You wish that you'd had hours of sleep that you lack
Your patriotism has grown somewhat slack,
You're as bad as though you had sat on a tack,
You wish that you had your good two dollars back—
And you mutter: "Gee, whiz; stung again."

It has been discovered that a woman's age can be ascertained by feeling her pulse. Heavy leather or silver wristlets will now come into style.

POSIBILITIES

The folks all laughed long years ago at old Darius Green
When he laid out to fly the air with his bird-like machine.
They tittered till they cracked their sides at Mr. Fulton's talk
When he said he'd fit up a boat with steam and make her walk.
They greeted talk of telephones with a derisive yell
And heaped all sorts of ridicule on Alexander Bell.

When Holland took his submarines beneath the raging main,
The sages gravely shook their heads and said he was insane.
The public had a lot of fun and couldn't help but laugh
When young Marconi started on his wireless telegraph.
When Edison built phonographs and said what they could do
It was considered such a joke, it tickled folks clear through.

And now they're gettin' up a scheme
to have a talk with Mars,
And confidential chats with quite a multitude of stars.
Of course, we know tain't possible,
but still nobody dast
Make any jokes concernin' it when he thinks of the past.
The folks would like to laugh right out and ridicule the thing,
But there's a chance that by some means they'll do it yet, by jing.

THE OLD FASHIONED DINNER.

To the New England dinner, I sing!
To the genuine, old-fashioned thing,
With its corned beef and cabbage and fixin's clear through;
Its turnips and parsnips and cauliflower, too,
All jumbled up in a magnificient stew.
It touches the spot as no other meals do,
Its memories over will cling.

The kind that we all used to know,
And we had every fortnight or so;
Not the kind that they serve in the gilded cafe,
Where they have finger bowls and the orchestras play;
Where a feller can't eat in the old-fashioned way,
Doin' scared of what some other people might say,
But the kind that mother cooked long ago.

How oft have we old fashioned hailed with de- farm dinner light bell,
And with robust As we rushed to appetite the kitchen to
The appeals of the get the first smell
Of the savory feed that we all liked
so well,
How I'd love just to linger an hour
'neath the spell
Of a New England dinner tonight

Old Fashioned Courtesy:

The visitor to the Big Store will find very few things about it that are old-fashioned. The aim is rather to make and keep everything in connection with the establishment modern. There is however, one exception. It is the old fashioned courtesy which characterizes the treatment of all who cross these thresholds, whether they be visitors, sightseers or customer-friends.

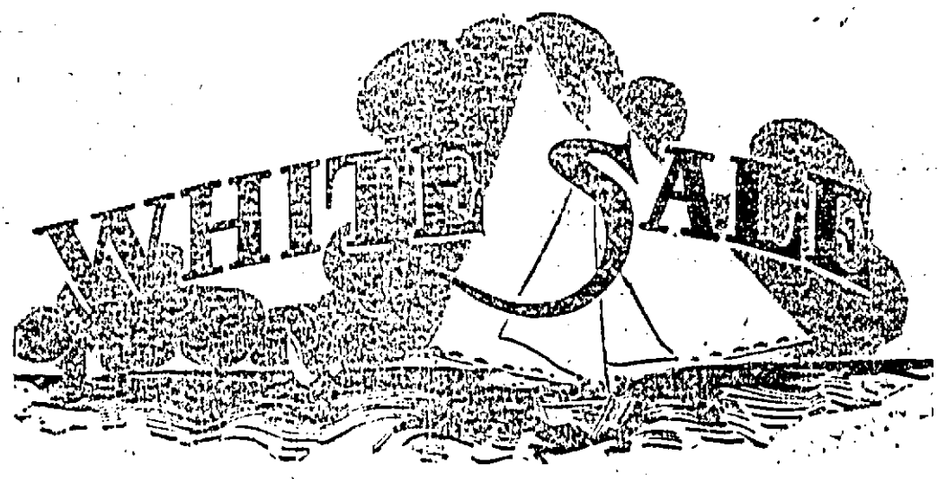

The Term "Old-fashioned" is used advisedly, for it is the intention to have nothing about "The Big Store's Courtesy" which savors of the merely superficial. The service which the customer or visitor receives might be termed a modern adoption of Seventeenth Century chivlary.

It is the kind which never neglects an opportunity to render service; not only that, it is the kind which often makes the opportunity and then improves it. This is true, not alone in regard to service given the people of Janesville and Rock County which would be but natural; it is also true of the attitude of those in authority toward their co-laborers and assistants, in the store, and this is one of the secrets of that "smoothness"; that absence of friction which is apparent in the daily doings of the Big Store.

There is, perhaps no factor more essential to the success of an individual or concern than courtesy. The courtesy which rectifies a mistake immediately; and does it gladly; is diplomatic where diplomacy is required, but always sincere, dignified and self-respecting without being pompous and overbearing. Courtesy of this kind is ever watchful to serve the interest of the visitor or customer in every possible way.

The Big Store owns no special patent rights on "Old-fashioned Courtesy", but it does much to encourage and develope it in the daily contact with customer-friends. In this developement no pains are spared, no stone left unturned, to include every facility of the organization in the broad purpose to serve everyone well.

DEALERS WILL LOSE BY BERRY BOX LAW

Shippers of State, Including M. S. Kellogg of Janesville, Bring Matter Before J. Q. Emery.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]

Madison, Wis., Jan. 19.—A loss of about $25,000 faces the retailers of berry crates in Wisconsin if the "short measure" berry box law passed by the last legislature be strictly enforced. If this be done, their crates and boxes bought before the law was passed, will have to be thrown away or be confiscated by the state. The rigid enforcement of the law, say the shippers, promises to work a hardship upon a large number of co-operating marketing concerns which supply the growers with the containers.

With prospects of a bumper crop in 1910, these distributing firms laid in a heavy stock of "flats," but a crop failure that year, due to frost, followed by an unusually short crop in 1911, left many of the companies with more than their usual surplus on hand.

The law, however, which was not finally approved until the last of the season (July 5), made it unlawful for them to dispose of their crates and boxes after Jan. 1, 1912, giving them but six months to come under the ruling.

The situation has been brought to the attention of State Dairy and Food Commissioner J. Q. Emery by the following shippers: A. W. Lawrence, Sturgeon Bay, president Door County Fruit Exchange; D. E. Bingham, Sturgeon Bay, president State Horticultural society; O. Flanders, Bayfield, secretary Bayfield Peninsula Fruit Shippers' association; C. J. Coe, president Sturgeon Bay Orchard and Nursery; J. W. Roe, Oshkosh; E. C. Stevens, Washburn, manager Washburn Fruit Growers' association; J. E. Paulson, Manitowoc; M. S. Kellogg, Janesville; N. A. Rasmussen, Oshkosh, president Oshkosh Horticultural society; H. C. Christensen, Oshkosh.

These men in a formal inquiry have asked Commissioner Emery if the growers will be permitted to use the boxes they now have on hand, providing the exact contents are plainly stamped on each box, or if not, whether the department will be inclined to enforce the law to the letter.

Sturgeon Bay and Bayfield firms have the largest quantities on hand, but the full enforcement of the law would also bear heavily upon concerns operating in Janesville, Sparta and other small fruit sections. While practically all these firms, it is said, are in favor of the establishment of a market standard, they feel that the law should have been so drawn or interpreted as to permit of their selling their present stock by stamping on each container its actual content, thus conforming to the spirit of the enactment.

Looks That Way.

A New York woman has an anklet that cost $25,000. Something put by for a rainy day, we presume.

All in One Second.

The way of writing modern romances.—Albert rode with the speed of an arrow to the garden, sprang like the wind from his steed, climbed like a squirrel over the hedge, writhed like a snake through the palings, flew like a hawk to the arbor, crept up to her all unseen, threw himself passionately at her feet, swore frantically that he would shoot himself; was, however, immediately heard, seated himself in blessed delight at her side, sank on her bosom, swam in a sea of bliss—all this was the work of a second!

No Vagabond Currents There.

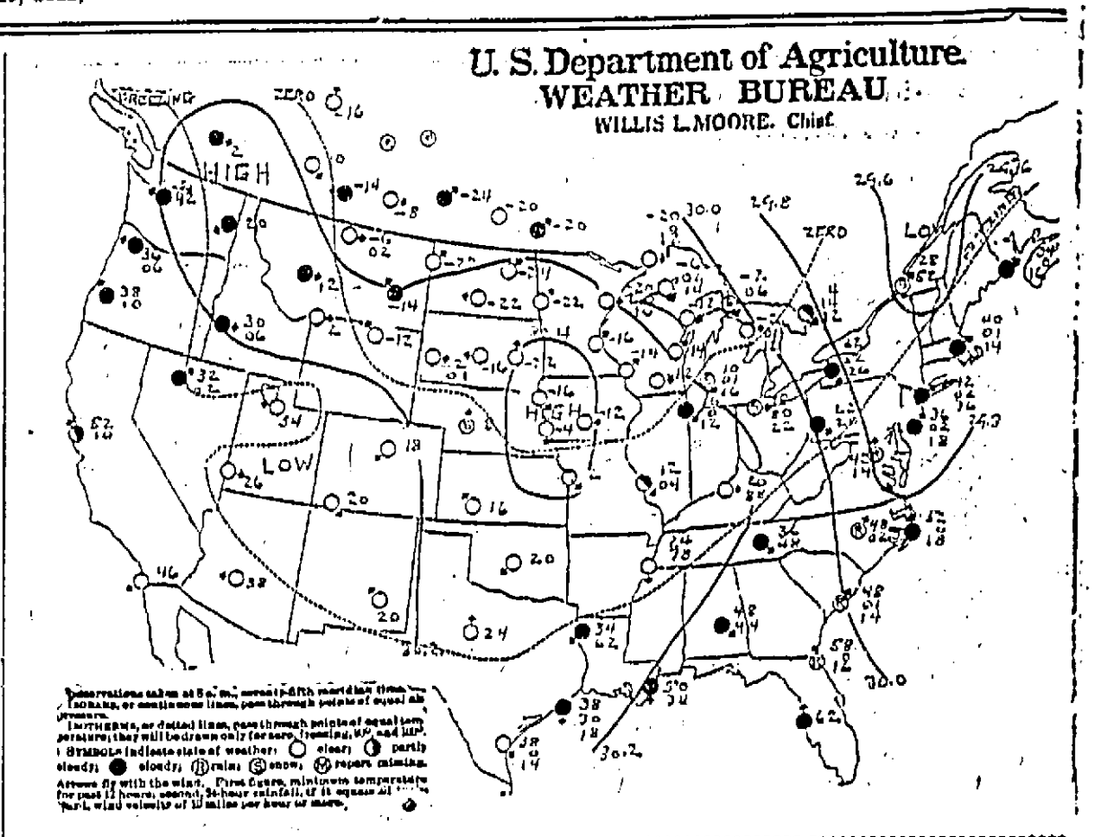

A system for the protection of gas and water mains against vagabond currents is in use at Karlsruhe. This is formed by placing at suitable spots electrods in the ground and connecting them to the positive pole of a low tension source of electricity (an accumulator or dynamo); while the pipes to be protected are connected to the negative pole.

Bullock With Two Hearts.

There was killed recently at Deptford, London, a bullock of phenomenal development. The animal, which was aged 12 months, was found to have two hearts, one being of normal size and the other somewhat smaller. Such a freak has never been known before in the annals of the market.

A Resolve.

"Not frequently or of necessity to say to anyone or to write in a letter that I have no leisure; nor continually to excuse the neglect of duties required by our relations to those with whom we live, by alleging urgent occupations."—Marcus Aurelius.

Little Bed-Time Tales By EDITH HAVENS

The Echo.

It was a beautiful mountain country where Gus and Katherine lived.

From the pretty valley where the little white cottage home stood this little brother and sister could look away up the rocky slope and along the banks of green treetops which rose like a mighty hill almost to the clouds. It was a pretty spot, apart from the rest of the world, it seemed, but in spite of this Gus and Katherine were not lonesome. No—they had no little playmates. The nearest house was five miles down the valley. Did I say that they had no playmates? Well, I made a mistake there. They did have two playmates and funny kinds of playmates they were.

Gus and Katherine never saw them—they only heard them—but they seemed so real that these little people were sure they were there somewhere over among the mountains and that some day they would come forth from out their hiding place to greet them.

You don't quite understand?

Well, here is the explanation.

You see every morning Gus and Katherine, laughing and shouting, would rush out of the house to say good-morning to the little playmates of somewhere.

They always faced the great mountain.

"Hello," Gus would shout.

"Hello," came back from out the mountains.

"Hello, shouted Katherine, and a little girl "Hello" would come back sounding just for all the world like Katherine's voice.

Their mother had told them it was the echo, but Gus and Katherine felt sure that some little girl and boy were hidden away somewhere among the waving trees. Some days the children would talk to the little invisible people for over half an hour and they would say all kinds of things.

There was one funny thing about the conversation. When Gus and Katherine would shout long sentences the little invisible people would shout back only part of it.

One morning Gus shouted—"When are you going to come over to our house to play?"

"Our house to play," was all that the little people would shout back.

Gus and Katherine, of course, understood by this that the invisible playmates wanted them to come to their house and they were as sorry as could be that they did not know where they lived.

But some day they are confident that they will meet their little friends of somewhere off among the mountains and then what a fine time they all will have.

Can You Beat This?

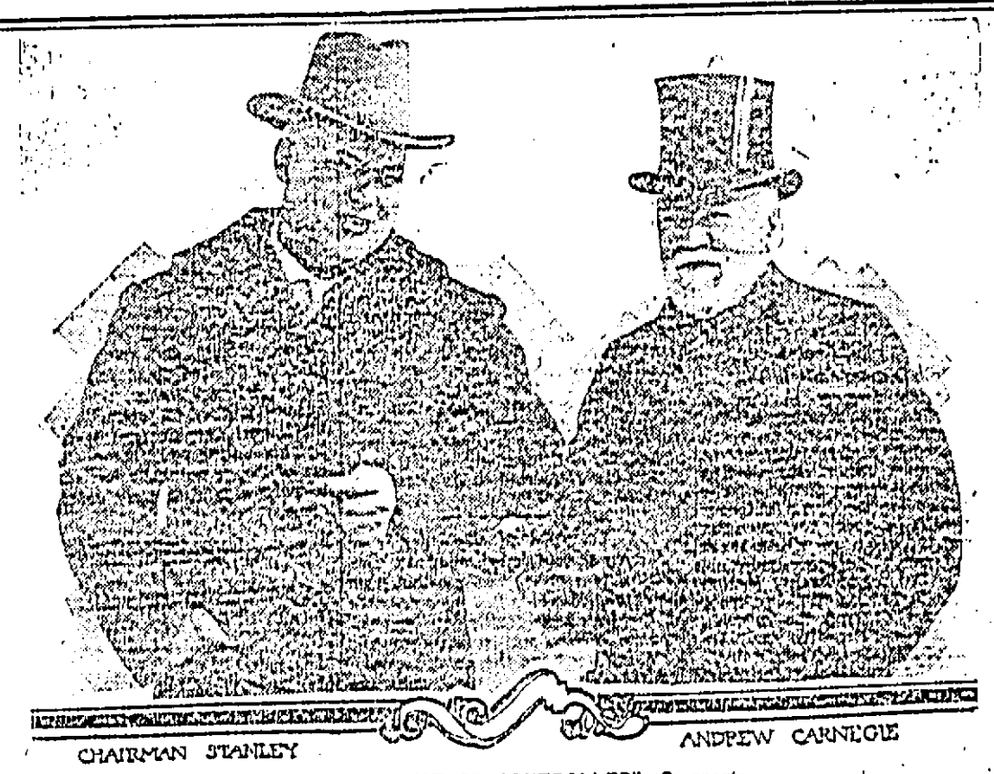

An English writer (a lady) thus embodies her virgin emotions in the words of a timed confessional:— . . . "The first time she was kissed she felt like a vase of roses swimming in honey and eau de cologne. She also felt as if something was running through her nerves on feet of diamonds, escorted by several little Cupids in chariots drawn by angels, shaded by honeysuckles, and the whole spread with melted rainbows."

Satirist Not Popular.

There's a great temptation to say cutting things. They sound clever. People laugh at them. They're interesting. Nothing is so absorbingly interesting as scandal. But of all the bad habits a man may fall into this will alienate him most from his fellows. If you are going in for saying bitter and sharp things about people you'd best pick out a desert island at once and go there and live.

Best Way to Get Even.

"TRUSTS MUST BE CONTROLLED"—Carnegie.

Washington, D. C.—The startling testimony of Andrew Carnegie before the Stanley Investigation Committee has had its effect in forming public opinion not in favor of dissolution of all trusts, but rather in favor of stringent government control which will allow a fair margin of profit to the corporation and still protect the rights of the people at large. The above picture shows Andrew Carnegie arm-in-arm with Chairman Stanley during the noon recess.

ROCK COUNTY ORDER OF GRAIN MEN FORM

WILLARD AUSTIN MADE PRESIDENT OF FIRST ORGANIZATION YESTERDAY.

PROF. MOORE ON SEEDS

Experimental Station Representatives Tell of Pedigreed Grains and Their Dissemination.

About twenty farmers in this vicinity attended the meeting at the City Hall yesterday afternoon which was conducted by the representatives of the Wisconsin Experiment Station at Madison who are in charge of the show car here for the day. Professor Hatch presided over the meeting and opened the program with a short talk on the general purposes and aims for which the experiment station is striving. Following this Professor R. A. Moore addressed the meeting on the subject of "Breeding and Dissemination of Pure Bred Seed Grains."

He began by mentioning the long years spent in purifying the breeds of animals during which time the scrub grains flourished in the country and made it impossible for the farmer to secure the best results from this labor.

Everywhere cornfields contained several varities of seed; barley fields were filled with grains which required different time for germination, and so on in all the grain raising countries. Losses by the farmer not only harmed him but hurt the entire community.

In starting to breed grain seeds about three thousand plants are planted and carefully watched during growth and upon maturity the seeds of each head are put into an envelope and weighed. The ten heaviest are saved for the next year's tests and then operations are repeated. These seeds next year are planted each in a separate plot and watched during growth, after which the four best heads are preserved and the operation again repeated. When the four heaviest heads from the final separation are secured they are planted and their seeds planted until the eighth year after the process was started and in the course of five years after that millions of bushels of pure bred seeds are ready for dissemination.

Most varieties of corn will double and triple their yield. Wellbred seed corn is worth three dollars a bushel, which, before breeding, brought only sixty cents.

Seeking for the best method of disseminating this seed, the Wisconsin Experimental Station decided on the the formation of an association of farmers who were graduates of the University Agricultural School and were best fitted to handle the seeds. This was done and each member received enough seed for an acre and the following year he had enough for a great many acres, and so became the source of supply for all his neighbors.

There is a membership of practically sixteen hundred, nearly all of whom are well equipped and ready to handle the seeds properly. Also it was deemed wise to have the counties which had fifty members or more, organize into county orders which might include those who have not graduated from the college. Wisconsin is now the most referred to authority on pure bred grains, not only in this country, but also in many foreign countries.

He also explained that the association had established over one thousand stations for the dissemination of pedigree barley, corn and oats. Wisconsin, today, is the leading state in the quality of barley, owing to the eight years of breeding.

When Professor Moore had finished a motion was made that a Rock county Order of the Experimental Association be organized and the motion was passed by a unanimous vote. The following officers were elected for the year:

President: Willard Austin.
Vice President: James Carrol.
Secretary: N. R. Haessler, of Beloit.

Twenty members signed up for admission to the Order and plans were made for a meeting to be held shortly.

At seven-thirty a large number of those interested in the question of alfalfa gathered and heard Professor Moore again on the benefits and advantages of alfalfa as a farm product. In the first place, the alfalfa crop keeps a great deal of money at home. In that it furnishes the necessary protein which otherwise has to be shipped from outside points in the form of cotton seed pulp, bran, meals, and other materials of this character.

Again, alfalfa has a deep root which not only uses the nutriment of the farm on the top of the ground, but also goes into the fifth, seventh, and twentieth farm underneath which so many other crops never touch. It also furnishes three and four cuttings when harvested at the time of budding, rather than after blooming.

He told of the proper methods of handling the crop to get it ready for the barns; of curing; of the use of covers; and the many other things which add to the value of the alfalfa.

He spoke of the exhaustive experiments at the Station which brought out the facts mentioned, and how they had found that the alfalfa properly handled could be made to replace a great many of the other grains so universally grown.

Meetings of the Wisconsin Agricultural Experiment Association will be held in Agricultural Hall at Madison on Friday and Saturday, January 26 and 27. All members of the Association are requested to be present if possible.

Big Combination.

A story is told of an American who visiting in Dublin, was conducted to the cathedral which had been restored by the Guinness family of brewers, then to the schools which they had built, and lastly to the great brewery. "This is really wonderful," said the Yankee. "You seem to run education, salvation and damnation all in one show."

He, Too, a Deceiver.

He—How is this? I come back unexpectedly from my trip and find you flirting with another man. You have deceived me. She—not any more than you. You told me you would be away eight days and here you are back again the next day. Have you not also deceived me?—Fliegende Blatter.

Infant Mortality.

Infant mortality is the most sensitive index we possess of social welfare of sanitary administration, especially under urban conditions. A heavy infant mortality implies a heavier death rate up to five years of age; and right up to adult life the districts suffering from a heavy child mortality have higher death rates than the districts whose infant mortality is low.—Newsholme in the National Food Magazine.

Must Have Imagination.

Life in the country may be one of the richest on earth, but it may also be one of the poorest. If the great book of nature be open to the eye of him who resides there, and illumined with the light of heaven, from his little knoll he can see and enjoy all the glory of the world; but if he sees in nature only the potato field which gives him food, then is this golden vein closed for him, and he himself stands like the potato plant, fast rooted in the earth.

Volcano a Wealth Producer.

A fairly enthusiastic volcano is one of the world's freaks as a wealth producer. Bongo, the volcano in question, is located in Japan, and produces refined sulphur, which by this natural method of production escapes the import duty charged by this country, amounting to $4 a ton. The owners of Bongo naturally have no desire to part with their fiery source of income.

Spiritual Insulation.

Many a man, who is now thrilled with the currents of the life of this modern age freely passing through him, is in danger of moral disaster, through defective spiritual insulation. Are the wires of your ambition well wrapped around with the insulating material of prayer and faith and love?—Zion's Herald.

An Old Virginia Law.

Virginia has an old law, dating back to the days of Patrick Henry, which prohibits rights-of-way being procured by condemnation proceedings through an orchard for a public road. Why an orchard was particularly designated for favoritism is not quite clear in these advanced days.

As the Chinese Make Matches.

The Japanese have developed the extensive manufacture of matches in China. There are factories at Tientsin, Pekin, Hangkow, Shanghai and other places. Th viceroys do not allow the erection of several factories in the same town, so that each factory has a kind of local monopoly. The factory at Hangkow employs 3,000 hands and produces fifty or sixty tons daily.

HEART AND HOME TALKS

BY BARBARA BOYD

One Way to Conquer Worry.

LET'S take a little scrutiny of that word "worry," and see if, when we know it in all its parts, we can't banish it.

It has the upper hand of many of us now, and is driving us with the lash of a slave-driver. We are cowed and helpless before it.

But if we will just take our courage in our hands, get a scalpel, and begin to dissect this worry, we may find we are letting ourselves be pursued by a bogie, which after all, has no parts.

Worry comes from a Dutch word, "Worgen," to throttle. And therein lies its whole power. We let it throttle us. We let it choke our courage, or our faith, or our self-reliance, and then we are a helpless figure before it. It has us, and we are weak, dismayed, cowed.

Worry seizes us about money matters, and instantly we are in a panic. It throttles the power to do. We can't think calmly or decide wisely. All we see is failure. As soon as we worry, we shut off instantly the ability to recover ourselves financially. It weakens and disheartens us. But if we refuse to worry, if we turn on this bogie and vanquish it, if we do not let it lay its paralyzing hand on us, we can begin instantly to think of ways and means to recoup. Hope energizes us. We begin at once to plan new lines of work.

Or perhaps it is gossip of some misconduct on the part of a member of the family that reaches us, and worry seizes us. We can't breathe. We scarcely seem able to live, so strong and relentless is the grasp of this seeming fiend. In this condition, we are utterly unable to give needed aid to the one who is beginning to stray, the aid perhaps that would bring his feet back before he has wandered far into forbidden paths.

We do not understand, perhaps, just this physical power of worry. Though we know it injures us, it has seemed some intangible thing that we could not free ourselves from.

But its intangibility becomes tangible in this actual, physical effect that renders us incapable of doing our best. Just as throttling us shuts off our heart's blood and makes us limp and weak, so worry shuts off the life-blood of the spirit, and leaves us faint and trembling. So with this understanding of it, we should fight it, the same as we would fight any disease that was attempting to lay us low. We must fight it in its own field, the mental; but now that we know where to centre the fight, victory may be ours.

When something happens that is a worry-breeder, we must turn a resolute face first upon worry itself. We must know that though it is immaterial, it can fasten itself upon us like a material thing and drain all energy, all courage, all power to do. We must fight it valiantly, knowing that once vanquished, we will be left with courage undaunted, and mind undimmed to handle the real problem that is pressing for solution. And, if clear-eyed and cool-headed, we can settle it successfully.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

JUST about every day of my life I am newly impressed with the vast possibilities in the science of motion study for the household.

I think I explained to you before that the science of motion study is the science of arranging one's surroundings and training one's self so as to do all routine work with the fewest and least tiring motions possible. Applied to business establishments, this science has saved thousands of dollars of money.

Applied to homes, I know it would save thousands of hours of labor.

Will you permit me to enter on a little personal history and tell you some of the ways in which I have found motions being wasted in my own household, in order to make my idea plainer?

When I was boiling eggs the other day I noticed that I had to take several steps to see the kitchen clock. Three times during the process of boiling those eggs—once to see what time it was when I put them in, and twice to see if they were done—I took those steps. Absolutely wasted energy, wasn't it? And probably wasted many times a day in that kitchen.

I reached for my dictionary to look up a word one day and it suddenly occurred to me that I was demonstrating a motion leak. My dictionary is my largest book, and for the sake of appearances has been placed at the further end of my book rack, and I have to reach over several books to get it. And yet it is the volume I use the most frequently. Needless to say, appearances were thrown to the winds and the dictionary put in its proper place.

Again, there is a large chair at the foot of my bed. Every time I walk around my bed in the process of making it, I must walk around that chair also. Only a few steps each time, to be sure, but how many thousand steps in a week, or a year, or a lifetime?

Just one more example. The coal shovel with which we put on the furnace coal has always stood, neither close by the furnace nor close by the coal bin, but against a chimney several feet away from either. That means that both before and after we put on coal, we walked several needless steps to get the shovel and replace it. Why does it stand there? Nobody knows. Simply for the reason that governs most household arrangements—that it always has.

I know that some better housewives than I are thinking that none of these leaks which I have mentioned would have existed at all in well-regulated homes. Perhaps not. Doubtless, these particular ones don't exist in yours, but Madame, I wouldn't be too sure that no others do.

In the arrangement of the pantry, in the arrangement of the garments in your wardrobe, of the china in your china-closet, in your kitchen, and, indeed, all over your house, there are a thousand chances for motion leaks.

Even some of the most systematic business establishments have found that there were many leaks in their systems. Perhaps you are the rara avis who is the exception to this universal rule. But, before you decide that, don't you think it would be worth while to look about you and see if you can't find a few motion leaks in your household?

Thought for Today

LIMITING WOMEN'S EDUCATION.

MISS CAROLINE HUNT says limiting women's education to preparation for home-making defeats one of the purposes of education—the discovery and development of special talents. It may mean failure to find a life work suited to the woman's natural endowment. And if she does not marry she is handicapped by lack of preparation for a life work. If she does marry she is not so well prepared as she might be to carry on her special work in hours of leisure during the period when child bearing imposes its necessary limitations. Later the unfortunate effect of this failure to recognize and cultivate talents becomes apparent. When she is freed from the care of young children, she is not prepared as she might be to enrich her own life and add to her usefulness by systematic work in her own line.

However we may regard the invasion of women into the work of the world, we must recognize it as a fact. President Thomas of Bryn Mawr says: "Everything seems to indicate that women will not only make their way into all except a few of the trades and professions, but they will be compelled, by economic causes beyond their control, to stay in them after marriage." It should be remembered that convention does not permit women primarily to choose to marry, nor are they to blame for industrial conditions that force them from the home into the world to work. If the sanctity of the home is at stake, men and women are alike interested in the preservation of its essential ideal. Women must be enlightened, educated liberally as men to understand their obligations and be prepared to do their part in the maintenance of the essential spirit of married and home life.

UP-TO-DATE HOUSEKEEPING.

Hot Dishes From a Cabbage Head.—Stuffed Creamed and in Slaw.

By Alice E. Whitaker.

A great many people would like cabbage if it could be cooked outside of the house and brought in ready to serve. Perhaps no odor from cooking is more persistent and disagreeable than that which permeates the house when cabbage is boiled. This unpleasantness can be mitigated a great deal by cooking the cabbage in a large amount of water uncovered and as a further precaution dropping the kitchen window a little at the top.

But there are some savory ways of cooking cabbage when it must be closely covered and the penalty must be paid. However a brief opening of doors and windows will do much to purify the house.

White cabbage is usually selected for cooking and often for salad. Select a cabbage that is heavy for its size and remove the rough outside leaves. Cut in quarters and let it lie in slightly salted water an hour before using. This soaking will not only make the cabbage crisp but it will drive out any insects or slugs that may be concealed among the leaves.

A delicate way of cooking this vegetable is by creaming. Slice thinly enough white cabbage to measure two quarts and let stand an hour in ice cold water. Drain and put in a sauce pan with two quarts of boiling water. Cook ten minutes uncovered, drain and cover with another two quarts of boiling water and cook until tender.

Drain and chop coarsely with a knife. In a sauce pan put one-quarter cup of butter, one-half level teaspoon of salt, a few dashes of pepper and stir in one rounding tablespoon of flour rubbed smooth. Cook fifteen minutes add the cabbage and serve when well heated.

For frying shave a small white cabbage fine and let stand an hour in cold water. Cut two slices of salt pork into cubes and fry until crisp. Drain the cabbage, put into the frying pan, add one-half cup of boiling water and half a teaspoon of salt. Cover tightly and cook about half an hour.

A German way with cabbage is as follows: Put three cups of finely shaved cabbage into sauce pan with water to cover and a level teaspoon of salt. Cook uncovered fifteen minutes then lay six frankfurters over the cabbage, cover and cook ten minutes. Take up the frankfurters and if the cabbage is tender, drain it and season with butter.

Another savory way is to stuff a cabbage. Take off the outside leaves from a medium sized head and cut out the heart leaving a shell of leaves an inch thick. From the inner part cut out the hard stalk and chop it adding one half of a small onion and two slices of bacon minced fine. Add two beaten eggs, a tablespoon of melted butter, one-half cup of bread crumbs, a tablespoon of milk and a little salt and pepper.

Stuff the cabbage with this mixture and put one of the best outside leaves over the top. Tie it on with a coarse thread and set the cabbage in a deep sauce pan not very much larger than the cabbage there is any stock or broth on hand add enough to cover the cabbage but lacking either use boiling water. Cover and cook slowly until the cabbage is tender. Lift without breaking on to a heated platter and pour round it one and one-half cup of white sauce seasoned highly with pepper or with a little red pimento chopped.

For hot slaw shred one half of a large white cabbage and dust with a little salt and pepper then dredge lightly with flour. Melt a rounding tablespoon of butter in a frying pan, put in the cabbage, cover and cook stirring occasionally. When it seems tender add one egg beaten well and stir rapidly then season with vinegar and serve hot.

Do I stand and stare? All's blue.

HELPFUL HINTS.

A nice little arrangement to use for a birthday cake is the cover of a candy pail. Have holes bored around the board deep enough to hold a candle, stain it any desired color and rest the cake in the center with the candles around it. Of course many more holes may be bored than needed, as the candles used need not fill each place. In this manner each member of a large family has the use of the candle board. It is safe, pretty and economical.

To loosen glass stoppers, pour a little oil around the mouth of the bottle and let it stand an hour of two; if the stopper is not loosened then, set the bottle in a dish of warm water. When hot remove and gently tap the stopper on either side and it will come out easily.

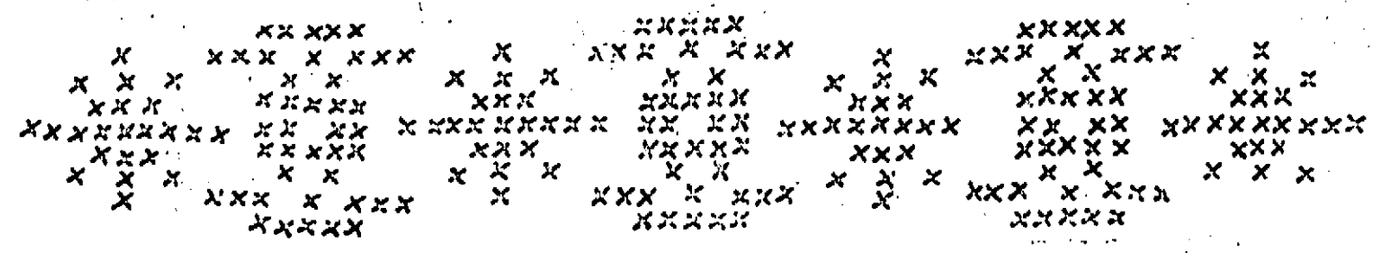

To wash chamois gloves: These gloves are serviceable, and if kept clean are the most satisfactory of gloves. When washing them, put on the hands and wash as you would your hands, rubbing on soap and rinsing all of it off, then wipe as dry as possible on a towel and leave for a few moments on the hands to dry. Pin up in an open window or hang in the air to dry. Do not lay them on a radiator or register to dry.

When you have the tough end of a steak, cut it into cubes and pour over water to cover. Add a small piece of carrot and onion and a potato or two and cook until tender. If the meat has not been previously cooked, brown it in a little hot suet.

Keep a well-corked bottle of chloroform to use in removing spots from delicate fabrics. Rub briskly and there will be no ring to mark the spot.

When a little onion juice is desired in any food, cut off a slice of unpeeled onion and press against the grooves, working with a rotary motion. The juice will flow down the grooves.

CROSS STITCH DESIGN FOR BELT OR COLLAR.

A collar, belt or shirtwaist may be decorated in this cross stitch pattern with good effect. All the stitches which slant in one direction should be worked first, then crossed by those slanting the other way, working from left to right. Mercerized cotton No. 16 may be used.

FADS AND FASHIONS

New York, Jan. 19.—Velvets and corduroys have become extremely popular for tailored costumes and are used a great deal. Now the French are adding plush, that supple, rich fabric with a satin sheen, to the materials of the tailored class. This material lends itself most charmingly to handsome suits, particularly in combination with broadcloth. A distinctive model much admired by the friends of its charming wearer, was of a rich olive green plush in combination with broadcloth. The rather long coat of the plush closed to one side with a full length line of handsome enameled buttons. The wide-draping revers were of a similar shade of green broadcloth, as was the upper part of the skirt, lengthened by a knee-depth flounce of the plush.

A negligee to be thoroughly practical should be washable. Though cleansing is now so quickly and cheaply done that anything at all dainty is usually sent to the cleanser, and for the cheap cold weather negligee of washable character outing flannels, like French flannels, challis and albatross cloth are the materials usually chosen. Albatross is the material with which the designers secure the best effects. In pink and blue it is charming, and white albatross made up over a pink silk is, perhaps, even more effective. Quilted sacks and budoir robes of pink or blue trimmed simply by embroidered scalloping of the edges and by and embroidered collar of the material, or possibly a collar of lingerie or lace, are exceedingly attractive and easily tubbed.

Without the hand embroidered scallops models are sold at very moderate prices. A lining of India silk throughout the robe or merely from the waistline up adds something to the cost, but adds also to the warmth of the garment without interfering with its laundering qualities. If tubbing is not to be considered, more latitude is allowed in the trimming of the albatross robe, though the character of such a garment should always be unpretentious and simple. A heavy lace insertion and edge of Cluny, Irish or heavy torchon may be used as trimming, and bands of pulling in silk or in the albatross are sometimes used effectively. Much depends upon the collar in such a robe, and, of course, upon the line. The modish negligee, like all modish garments of the season achieves a clinging narrowness, but needs also ample fullness for the ease and comfort of the wearer in her hours of relaxation.

Cashmere, too, is used for simple negligees and some smart looking simple robes. In light blue or pink cashmere or broadcloth are trimmed in wide, flat white silk braid or in the white braid with an effective narrow line of black braid edging the white. The flannels are warm but less satisfactory in other respects than the albatross, because they are rather more clumsy and show soil more readily.

Some of the simple budoir robes in wool have narrow fringe borders as their only trimming; but even narrow fringe is apt to tangle and muss, and, of course, the fringe makes laundering difficult, if not impossible. The challies are extremely pretty this season and some of them are very cleverly used by the designers of negligees, bordered effects being particularly successful. The material wears well, tubs well and has pleasant warmth without burdensome thickness; but for some reason it is not considered quite so smart as other materials and is used but little by French makers.

For the very warm robe wadded silk or zenana cloth is the thing, and both are offered in models more or less expensive, and more or less elaborate. Japanese hand embroideries lavishly adorn some of these wadded robes. The ordinary ready made robe of wadded silk is a comfortable but unbecoming thing, with its bulky turnover collar, and the handsome zenana robes with embroidered collars of lace and lingerie are usually very expensive. It is less expensive to buy the zenana cloth in the color wanted and have the robe made to fit well and with detachable, lingerie and lace collars, which lend daintiness to the robe but may easily be removed and washed.

Among silks for negligees there are many weaves, and many grades. Quaint kimono silks for Japanese designs come in varying degrees of beauty and quality, but the silks preferred by the French designers are the one tone crepes of dull or crinkled or satin finish. Some attractive models are made up in the India silks, but these silks are more popular for the summer negligee than for the winter garment and are usually made with much tucking and lace, while the chic winter negligee robe is, as has been said, of a knowing simplicity. Where India silk is used it is, as a rule, over some contrasting color which shows softly through its semi-transparency, and even for these effects a very sheer crinkly crepe or something approaching a satin mousseline is better liked.

This season ribbons are used to make bodices, panels, boleros, cuspues and all sorts of collars and cuffs, and various blouse garnitures. There is also a marked and growing preference for girdles of ribbon. Some of the smartest of these girdles are of three or more breadths in pastel colors in messaline or gauze ribbon, or in breadths of several tone of the same color. The belt is generally draped. In another style the ribbon is braided, and in still another it is twisted.

Almost every kind of ribbon is used as trimming for party and evening wear. Floral ribbons are in high favor, as are also the bordered style and two-tones, and all with some gold or silver. The color preference seems to be for a delicate shaded pattern on a light ground, and the widths range from six to ten inches.

Doubleface satin with a contrasting back, and about four inches wide, is made into very full double box-plaited ruches sewn in the middle with a very pretty color effect. Gauze and gold or silver ribbons about five inches wide are shirred into conventional patterns over a cord, and fancy styles of every width and style are gathered into flounces, ruffles and frills. Very narrow ribbons are largely used as an edging to lace or net ruffles, or are put on like braid, in a pattern. Rich and exquisite patterns on satin are used as panels, tablers and other trimmings.

Among the most quaint hat shapes are the Dutch bonnets with the puff crowns and the strikingly prominent sides curiously bent and standing away from the face. This style is built up in fascinating ways, the carrying of contrasting material and quite ornamental. Metal laces are often employed for that purpose.

Gorgeous evening slippers are shown this season to match the most exquisite toilettes. Those of black brocade with emerald and gold, are most distinguished with a black gown. Many of the evening slippers have returned to the fashion of former times, and have ribbons attached that are wound around the instep and ankles like the sandals of a ballet girl.

It is quite a fad to wear hatpins that match the umbrella handle, and it is the blond tortoiseshell, jasper and carnelian sets that are liked the best.

In Paris the large hats of white silk beaver, faced with black velvet, are running a race for favor with the small hats of tigerskin.

FLORENCE FAIRBANKS.

MAKE THE NEW FLANNEL WRAPPER THIS WAY.

New York.—As a change from the eternal kimono, this dainty Empire dressing gown is charming. Flowered flannelette with a violet ground was used to make the Empire model and bands of plain satin in a darker violet shade add an effective contrast. The sleeve is slashed and caught together with straps of the violet satin and there is a satin girdle around the slightly raised waistline. At the back a straight panel from neck to heel gives a graceful line and at the bottom this panel forms a double box pleat which gives width to the narrow skirt.

LAMB CHOP.

Lamb chop contains about one per cent. less protein than beefsteak and about one per cent. more than pork chop. Its heat and energy value is a little less than that of pork and nearly a fourth more than that of beef. The objections urged against meat in general as food apply less forcibly to lamb chop than to any other flesh food except fresh game. It is urged by vegetarian physicians that, besides other objections to meat in general, the animal tissues are charged with the waste matters that are in all tissues. There is probably most of this in pork stall fed, and least in lamb or goat, most in old cows, especially if tuberculous, and in old pigs.

JANESVILLE MEN ARE NOT THE EASY MARKS

Russian Prisoner in Spanish Prison Will Remain There If He Waits For Local Men to Help Him.

If Alexander Sudrowsky, who is supposed to be awaiting trial in Spain on the charge of manslaughter, thinks two Janesville men he has written to are easy marks he is badly mistaken. Here is a letter which they have received from the fellow both being the same:

"Dear Sir:—Although I know you only from good references of your honesty my sad situation compels me to reveal you an important affair in which you can procure a modest fortune saving at the same time that of my darling daughter. Before being imprisoned here I was established as a banker in Russia, as you will see by the enclosed article about me, of many English newspapers which have published my arrest in London. I beseech you to help me to obtain a sum of $480,000 I have in America, and to come here to raise the seizure of my baggage paying to the registrar of the court the expenses of my trial and recover my portmanteau containing a secret pocket where I have hidden the document indispensable to recover the said sums. As a reward I will give to you the third part, viz., 160,000 dollars. I cannot receive your answer in the prison but you must send a cablegram to a person of my confidence who will deliver it to me. Awaiting your cable to instruct you in all my secret, I am, Sir, yours, truly, Sudrowsky."

"First of all answer by cable not by letter as follows: Alvaro Sanchez, Peso 4, Valladolid (Spain) Yes. Mitchell."

The same follow tried to work the same scheme on several Janesville business men a few months ago. His letters are accompanied by a clipping from a newspaper which gives an account of his arrest on a manslaughter charge. The article also sets forth that Sandrowsky was a banker at St. Petersburg, Russia and eloped with five millions of rubles.

BREAKS UP A COLD AND CURES GRIPPE.

The Most Severe Cold and Grippe Misery Will Be Relieved in Just A Few Hours.

You can surely end Grippe and break up the most severe cold either in head, chest, back, stomach or limbs, by taking a dose of Papo's Cold Compound every two hours until three consecutive doses are taken.

It promptly relieves the most miserable neuralgia pains, headache, dullness, head and nose stuffed up, feverishness, sneezing, sore throat, mucous catarrhal discharges, running of the nose, soreness, stiffness and rheumatic twinges.

Take this harmless Compound as directed, without interference with your usual duties and with the knowledge that there is no other medicine, made anywhere else in the world, which will cure your cold or end Grippe misery as promptly and without any other assistance or bad after-effects as a 25 cent package of Papo's Cold Compound, which any druggist in the world can supply.

Papo's Cold Compound is the result of three years' research at a cost of more than fifty thousand dollars, and contains no quinine, which we have conclusively demonstrated is not effective in the treatment of colds or grippe.

DEFENDS AMERICAN TITLE

New York City.—Miss Sybil Marston the Leland Stanford University girl who disputed the fencing of the world with Baroness De Meyer, takes a rap at American women for their lack of grit and nerve in entering the realm athletic sports.

To a reporter she said just before the bout:

"I'm a bit disgusted with American women. It is such a poor showing of American grit and nerve that only one of us should challenge the Baroness who appears to have lots of persons on her side. There seems to be a great belief in her powers. Oh, my goodness, how I'd just, I'd just like to show 'em, though!"

CHARACTER STUDY IN CLAY.
(By C. A. Beaty.)

Woodrow Wilson, presidential aspirant, at present wearing gracefully the toga of governorship of New Jersey, hales from the state which has produced so many presidents, Virginia. He has just passed his 55th birthday.

After graduating from Princeton University he took up the study of law at the University of Virginia, taking post graduate courses in John Hopkins, Harvard, Yale and Rutgers. He first entered the cold business world as an attorney, hanging out his shingle in Atlanta, Georgia, in 1882. After three years of practice in the legal work he was made professor of history and political economy at Bryn Mawr College.

Five years later he was made professor of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton and in 1902 was made president of the New Jersey institution.

He is the author of many books on government history and political economy.

THE THEATERS

SANE MUSICAL COMEDY.

"Louisiana Lou," which will be played by Harry Askin's special company for the first time here on Friday evening, Jan. 19, in Myers Theatre is founded on reason, inasmuch as there is a play beneath the fabric of fun and music that has made it the success of the season in Chicago, where it has been running since Sept. 3, 1911. A sane story is told by "Louisiana Lou"; and every laugh and every song grows legitimately out of this story.

The character of the title is a foundling. She was picked up in the street one night by Jacob Lidoffski, a kindly Hebrew, in New Orleans, where he and his immigrant pa, Roderick Konkarney, were seeking to make a living. Lidoffski, broke and virtually homeless save for the room he occupied in the Konkarneys' poor but happy little home, took the child to the care of Mrs. Konkarney, who gave to the foundling the same tender care as to her own son, Jack. Luck changed for both Lidoffski and Konkarney from the night the child was found; and at the opening of the play we find Louisa Lou, the name given to her by Lidoffski because of the initials "L. L." in the locket about her baby neck, betrothed to Jack, but in love with Jack's pal, Nixon Holme, and Jack, facing an "arranged" marriage with Lou, in love with Delia Fair, the pretty sister of the second Mrs. Konkarney, the first having died before the opening of the story.

It is Mardi-Gras in New Orleans when Lou returns from her Paris schooling; and the play consists of the resources employed by all four lovers to upset the plans of Lidoffski and Konkarney to unite the two families in marriage. One of the touching and beautiful scenes of the play is where Lidoffski, in fear, tells the foundling, now a beautiful girl of seventeen years, that she is not his own child.

NO CASCARET USER EVER HAS HEADACHE

A 10 cents box will keep your liver, stomach and bowels clean, pure and fresh for months.

Sick headache, biliousness, dizziness, coated tongue, foul taste and foul breath—always trace them to torpid liver, delayed fermenting food in the bowels or sour, gassy stomach.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is reabsorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Salts, cathartic pills, oil and purgative waters force a passageway for a day or two—yes—but they don't take the poisons out and have no effect upon the liver or stomach.

Cascarets immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the decomposed waste matter and poisons in the intestines and bowels.

A Cascaret tonight will surely straighten you out by morning. They work while you sleep—a 10-cent box from your druggist means inside cleanliness and a clear head for months. Ask any of the millions of Cascaret users if they ever have headache.

Meritol White Liniment.

Should be in every home as its immediate application to cuts, bruises, sprains and wounds gives instant relief. It has no equal as a pain killer and healer. Reliable Drug Co.

The Extraordinary Event of the Year

A Wonderland of Bargains for January and February, Beginning January 15th and Ending February 15th, 1912

THE BARGAIN COUNTERS want your trade in Dry Goods, Notions, Underwear, Furnishing Goods and Shoes, and we mean to get a large share of it. We want to get it, by deserving it; we mean to make it PAY YOU to buy at the bargain counters. Our first great aid to success will be CASH—CASH buying and CASH selling. Did you ever figure out the difference between cash and credit, when it comes to keeping store? Cash buys cheaper—all the choicest bargains are at his beck and call. CASH does business at a less expense than credit does, because he has nobookkeepers to pay, he has no interest to pay to the bank for borrowed money, and he does not lose the interest on money locked up in goods and in bad and doubtful accounts. When you buy goods for CASH you buy for less money because of these things. You buy for less for another reason—you don't help pay other people's bad debts. And the help will be money back if you want it.

You will find Norton & Mahoney's policy is small profits and quick turn over of stock. We buy right and sell cheap. It is this perpetual pushing of stocks that keeps the factory fires burning and fills the working man's dinner pail. It also helps you to goods at low figures. Remember "Store Extravagance" means high prices and large profits. Excessive decorations made to enhance appearance of merchandise must be paid for by the public.

Our object lesson is TRUE ECONOMY. True economy is buying for 5 or 10 cents that which will answer the same purpose as the same article at double or more than double the price. It is easy to practice true economy at Norton & Mahoney's Bargain Counters. Look through the list of necessary goods that you use every day—goods you must have to live right and work well. Remember that the prices here are good for the months of January and February only.

SIDEWALK SKETCHES

THE SHEEP

(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE sheep is an animal which marks the dividing line between senile dementia and hardening of the think glands. There are various classes of sheep, but when it comes to intellect they are all about as keen as the village joker at a surprise party. The well-balanced sheep is composed of one part wool and nine parts non compos mentis, with the result that there is quite a sameness to her conversation. We are taught in physiology that the brain of the adult sheep weighs less than that of any other article of merchandise except the Hubbard squash, and it is a tight squeak between the two at that. The sheep is a very deceptive animal. She can look wise on a smaller equipment of gray matter than anybody outside of the learned professions, and yet if you walk up and engage her in friendly converse she will prove a greater disappointment than the dinner partner whose mental pabulum consists of the embroidery page and "Helpful Hints to the Brokenhearted." We never saw a sheep that didn't wear a look of settled melancholy, as if she were nursing an internal grief or had eaten something that disagreed with her. Her speaking voice is about as melodious as the expiring notes of a bagpipe, and being troubled with considerable denseness in her cerebral cavities it is very difficult to make her see the point to a joke. No one ever saw a sheep throw her head back and laugh in the hearty, unaffected manner of a man who has just tumbled to a joke told him two days before. Just now the sheep is filling the mind of congress with perplexity and grief and the homes of the common people with lamb chops disguised as veal. The sheep is given a free haircut once a year, and climbs out of the chair clad in the habiliments of pristine innocency and a sorrowful look.

The Result.

As deep as the canyons,
As deep as the sea;
So deep am I running
In debt over thee.

—Judge.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Gazette, Jan. 19, 1872—It is given out as a fact in Washington that Horace Greeley has refused to sign a call for the National Republican convention.

A line of telegraph was completed from Menasha to Stevens Point a few days ago.

The manufacturers of Racine produced two million and a half more in the value of their products in 1871 than in 1870.

The Oconomowoc Times states that the Japanese government has sent to Gen. Starkweather and John Whitaker of that town for some of their choice seeds. J. I. Case & Co., at Racine, are thinking, in the most beautiful style, one of their threshing machines for the Japanese government.

The first public evening reception by President Grant at the executive mansion took place last evening and was largely attended.

Suits instituted by the wives of drunken husbands, to the amount of $50,000, are pending against the saloon keepers of Ironton, Ohio. In the Maine State Temperance Convention, yesterday, a report was unanimously adopted that the Michigan law, making the seller of intoxicating liquors and the owner of the building responsible for the damage done by an intoxicated person, be enacted in that state.

UNCLE WALT

The Poet Philosopher

Copyright, 1909, by George Matthew Adams

BY WALT MASON

Oh, Johnson, Langford and McVey loom up in dark but brave array. The dead game sport in sorrow gropes among our stock of white men's hopes, and finds them all devoid of charms—they're all passed up as false alarms. Alas, we might as well admit that in the ring the black man's it. Long years may pass before we find a white man who can strip the rind from Joe or Tham or Sam or Jack or t'othermost "gigantic black." But let us not, my friends, despair, or rend our beards or paw the air. In other avenues we rise, we whites, triumphant to the skies! In poetry our Laura Lane can give the Ethiopes a pain; in science we have but to look upon the works of Dr. Cook; in art a white man spreads the ink immortalizing Hink and Dink; and we have Winifreds and Maes who fill with sunshine all our days, with little essays which impart a genial warmth to every heart. Go to, my friend, we are not lost, though in the ring we're double crossed. In all the gentle arts of peace we still remain as slick as grease.

COMFORT STILL.

A Vigorous Performer.

"Does your boy Josh play on the football team?"

"No," replied Farmer Cornstalk. "John wouldn't stand fur no molly-coddle job like that. He's the feller that leads the mob and wrecks opry houses after the game is over."

Not Up-to-Date.

"Atlas was a fool for holding up that world on his own shoulders."

"Why was he a fool?"

"He should have organized the Globe Trust company to carry it on."

Deceitful Creature.

There's Mrs. Tuggle,

CURIOUS BITS OF HISTORY

A ROMAN EMPEROR'S INHUMANITY.

By A. W. MACY.

As an exhibition of cool and exquisite vengeance nothing in all history exceeds in horror that taken by Basil II., a Roman emperor of the eleventh century, on 15,000 captured Bulgarian soldiers. They had been guilty of nothing worse than defending their country against the invasion of his army, yet he had their eyes put out, leaving, however, a single eye to one of each hundred men, in order that he might lead his blind companions back to their Bulgarian king. It is said that when they appeared before that monarch he was so overcome by the horror of it that he died within a few days. Basil died at sixty-seven, "dismissed," says the historian, "with the blessings of the clergy and the curses of the people."

Natural Inclination.

"Do you think your nephew shows any predilection for a useful pursuit?" asked the serious relative. "Well," replied Mr. Groucher, "judging by the way he tries to keep his face and hands and clothes, I think he would enjoy being a chimney sweep."

FRECKLES

By

Gene Stratton-Porter

COPYRIGHT, 1904, BY DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & CO.

She laid down the paper and touched the portrait.

"When you were just a boy, did people call you Freckles?" she asked.

"Dozens of good fellows all over Ireland and the continent are doing it today," answered Lord O'Moro.

The angel's face lighted with her most beautiful smile.

"I was sure of it," she said winningly. "That's what we call him, and he is so like you. I doubt if any one of those three boys of yours are more so. But it's been twenty years. Seems to me you've been a long time coming!"

Lord O'Moro caught the angel's wrists and his wife slipped her arms about her.

"Steady, my girl!" said the man's voice hoarsely. "Don't make me think you've brought word of the boy at this last hour unless you know surely."

"It's all right," said the angel. "We have him, and there's no chance of a mistake. If I hadn't gone to that home for his little clothes and heard of you and been hunting you and had met you on the street, or anywhere, I should have stopped you and asked you who you were just because you are so like him. It's all right. I can tell you where Freckles is; but whether you deserve to know—that's another matter!"

Lord O'Moro did not hear her. He dropped back in his chair and, covering his face, burst into those terrible sobs that shake and rend a strong man. Lady O'Moro hovered over him, weeping.

"Umph! Looks pretty fair for Freckles," muttered the angel. "Lots of things can be explained. Now perhaps they can explain this."

They did explain so fully that in a few minutes the angel was on her feet, hurrying Lord and Lady O'Moro to reach the hospital.

"You said Freckles' old nurse knew his mother's picture instantly," said the angel. "I want that picture and the bundle of little clothes."

Lady O'Moro gave them into her hands.

The likeness was a large miniature painted on ivory, with a frame of beaten gold, and the face that looked out of it was of extreme beauty and surpassing sweetness. Surrounded by masses of dark hair was a delicately cut face, with big eyes. In the upper part of it there was no trace of Freckles, but the lips curving in a smile were his very own. The angel gazed as if she could never leave off. Then with a quivering breath she laid the portrait aside and reached both arms for Lord O'Moro's neck.

"That will save Freckles' life and insure his happiness," she said positively. "Thank you, oh, thank you for coming!"

She kissed and hugged him and then the wife who had come with him. She opened the bundle of yellow and brown linen and gave just a glance at the texture and work. Then she gathered the little clothes and the picture to her heart and led the way to the cab.

Ushering Lord and Lady O'Moro into the reception room, she said to McLean, "Please go call up my father and ask him to come on the first train."

She swung the door after him.

"These are Freckles' people," she said to the Bird Woman. "You can find out about each other. I'm going to him."

And she was gone.

The nurse left the room quietly as the angel entered, still carrying the bundle and the picture. When they were alone the angel turned to Freckles and saw that the crisis was, indeed, at hand.

"Angel," he panted. "Oh, angel! Did you get them? Are they white? Are the little stitches there? Oh, angel! Did me mother love me?"

The words seemed to leap from his burning lips. The angel dropped the bundle on the bed and laid the picture, face down, across his knees. She gently pushed his head to the pillow and caught his arms in a firm grasp.

"Yes, dear heart," she said with fullest assurance. "No little clothes were ever whiter. I never in all my life saw such dainty, fine little stitches, and, as for loving you, no boy's mother ever loved him more!"

A great trembling seized Freckles.

"Sure? Are you sure?" he urged, with clicking teeth.

"I know," said the angel firmly. "And, Freckles, while you rest and be glad I want to tell you a little story. When you feel stronger we will look at the clothes together. They are here. They are all right. But when I was at the home getting them I heard of some people that were hunting a lost boy. I went to see them, and what they told me was all so exactly like what might have happened to you that I must tell you. Then you'll see that things could be very different from what you have always tortured yourself with thinking."

Freckles lay quiet under her touch, but he did not hear a word that she was saying until his roving eyes rested on her face; and he immediately noticed a remarkable thing. For the first time she was talking to him and doing everything but meet his eyes. That was not like the angel at all. It was the delight of hearing her speak that she always looked one squarely in the face and with perfect frankness.

"—and he was a sour, grumpy old man," she was saying. "He always had been spoiled, because he was an only son and had a title and a big estate. He would have just his way, no matter about his sweet little wife, or his boys, or any one. So when his eldest son fell in love with a beautiful girl with a title, the very girl of all the world his father wanted him to, and added a big adjoining estate to his, why, that pleased him mightily.

"Then he went and ordered his other son to marry a poky kind of a girl that nobody liked to get another big estate on the other side, and that was different. That was all the world different, because the eldest son had been in love all his life with the girl he married, and, oh, Freckles, it's no wonder, for I saw her! She's a royal beauty and she has the sweetest way.

"But that poor younger son, he had been in love with the village vicar's daughter all his life. That's no wonder either, for she was more beautiful yet. She could sing like the angels, but she hadn't a cent. She loved him to death, too, if he was bony and freckled and red haired—I don't mean that! They didn't say what color his hair was, but his father's must have been the reddest ever, for when he found out about them, and it wasn't anything so terrible, he just raved!

"The old man went to see the girl—the pretty one with no money, of course—and he hurt her feelings until she ran away. She went over to London and began studying music. Soon she grew to be a lovely singer, and then she joined a company and came to this country.

CHAPTER XXIII.

THREE GUESSES.

"WHEN the younger son found that she had left London, he ran off and followed her," continued the angel. Freckles was listening most attentively now. "When she got here all alone and afraid," the angel went on, "and saw him coming to her, why, she was so glad she up and married him, just like anybody else would have done. He didn't want her to travel with the troupe, so when they got to Chicago they thought that would be a good place, and they stopped, and he hunted work. It was slow business, because he had never been taught to do a useful thing, and he didn't even know how to hunt work, least of all to do it when he found it; so pretty soon things were going wrong. But if he couldn't find work, she could always sing, so she sang at night, and made little things in the daytime. He didn't like her to sing in public, and he wouldn't let her when he could help himself; but winter came, it was very cold, and fire was expensive. Rents went up, and they had to move farther out to cheaper and cheaper places; and you were coming—I mean, the boy that is lost was coming—and they were almost distracted. Then the man wrote and told his father all about it, and his father sent the letter back unopened and wrote him to never write again.

"When the baby came, there was mighty little left to pawn for food and a doctor, and nothing at all for a nurse, so an old neighbor woman went in and took care of the young mother and the little baby. Just because she was so sorry for them. By that time they were away out in the suburbs on the top floor of a little wooden house, among a lot of factories, and it kept getting colder, with less to eat. Then the man got desperate, and he went out to just find something to eat; and the woman was desperate, too. She got up, left the old woman to take care of her baby and went into the city to sing for some money. The woman got so cold she put the baby in bed and went home. Then a boiler blew up in a factory beside the little house and set it on fire. A piece of iron was pitched across the little house and broke through the roof. It came down smash, and cut just one little hand off the poor baby. It screamed and screamed, and the fire kept coming closer and closer.

"The old woman ran out with the rest of the people and saw what had happened. She knew there wasn't going to be time to wait for the firemen or anything, and she ran into the building. She could hear the poor little baby screaming, and she couldn't stand that, so she worked her way up to it. There it was, all hurt and bleeding. Then she was scared almost to death over thinking what its mother would do to her for going off and leaving it, so she ran to a home for little friendless babies that was near and banged on the door. Then she hid across the street until the baby was taken in, and then she ran back to see if her own house was burning up. The factory and the little house and a lot of others were all gone. The people there told her that the beautiful lady came back and ran into the house to find her baby. She had just gone in when her husband came, and he went in after her, and the house went down over both of them."

Freckles lay rigid, with his eyes on the angel's face, and she talked rapidly to the ceiling.

"Then the old woman was just sick about that poor little baby. She was afraid to tell them at the home, because she knew she never should have left it, but she wrote a letter and sent it to where the beautiful woman, when she was ill, had said her husband's people lived. She told all about the little baby that she could remember: when it was born, how it was named for the man's elder brother, that its hand had been cut off in the fire, and where she had put it to be doctored and taken care of. She told them that its mother and father were both burned, and she begged and implored them to come and get it.

"You think it would have melted a heart of ice, but that old man hadn't any heart to melt, for he got that letter and read it. He hid it away among his papers and never told a soul. A few months ago he died. When his elder son went to settle up his business he found that letter almost the first thing. He dropped everything, and came, with his wife, to hunt that baby, because he had always loved his brother dearly, and wanted him back. He had hunted for him all he dared all these years, and when he got here you were gone—I mean the baby was gone—and I had to tell you, Freckles, for you see it might have happened to you like that just as easy as to that other lost boy."

Freckles reached up and turned the angel's face until he compelled her eyes to meet his.

"Angel," said Freckles at last, catching her wrist, "are you trying to tell me that there is somebody hunting a boy that you're thinking might be me? Are you belavin' you've found me relations?"

Then the angel's eyes came home. The time had come. She pinioned Freckles' arms to his sides and bent above him.

"How strong are you, dear heart?" she breathed. "How brave are you? Can you bear it? Dare I tell you that?"

"No!" gasped Freckles. "Not if you're sure! I can't bear it! I'll die if you do!"

The day had been one unremitting strain with the angel! Nerve tension was drawn to the finest thread. It snapped suddenly.

"Die?" she flamed. "Die, if I tell you that! You said this morning that you would die if you didn't know your name, and if your people were honorable. Now I've gone and found you a name that stands for ages of honor, a mother that loved you enough to go into the fire and die for you, and the nicest kind of relatives, and you turn round and say you'll die over that! You just try dying and you'll get a good slap!"

GEN. HALL AND PARTY IN THE PHILIPPINES

Pastor Russell Speaks to Crowds in Manila.

Foreign Missions Investigation Committee Given Every Means For Noting Civil and Missionary Activities Amongst the Filipinos—Pastor Russell Tells Auditors That Christ's Kingdom, When Established on Earth, Will Exercise Autocratic Power.

Manila, Jan. 14th.—Gen. W. P. Hall, second in command of the U. S. Army and at one time Military Governor of the Philippines, is here in company with Pastor C. T. Russell, Prof. F. H. Robison, Dr. L. W. Jones, Mr. J. T. D. Pyles, Mr. E. W. V. Kuehn and Mr. R. B. Maxwell, the special committee of Foreign Missions Investigation, appointed by the International Bible Students' Association. They were heartily welcomed and given every facility for noting civil and missionary activities amongst the Filipinos. Pastor Russell gave two addresses today to large audiences, chiefly Americans. We report his address from the text, "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth, as it is done in heaven." He said:—

Many of us have learned to appreciate a Republican form of government as the very highest type of civil administration. Nevertheless, the Bible teaches that Messiah's reign will be that of a Monarchy; not only so, it will be a very exclusive and aristocratic Monarchy. Additionally, it will be most autocratic—theocratic. At first, in alarm, we are ready to say, Would not that be a most dangerous condition of things? Ordinarily yes, but when I shall describe the nature of the Kingdom and its personnel, all your fears will assuredly vanish.

The Reason For the Failure of Napoleon and Papacy.

Scripturally, the Kingdom is described as Earth's Fifth Universal Empire. I remind you of the Divinely inspired dream of King Nebuchadnezzar, as interpreted by the Prophet Daniel. The great image of Daniel II, 31 was described as representing the four successive Universal Empires of earth—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Grecia and Rome. No fifth Universal Empire has been possible; hence the failure of Napoleon and of Papacy to accomplish their intentions.

The Pastor declared that the present governments of Europe represent the ten toes of Nebuchadnezzar's image, and expressed the belief that very soon they will be smitten in a great time of trouble, as outlined in this prophecy. The trouble will entirely sweep away all present human governments, and the Kingdom of Messiah will gradually, during a thousand years, fill the whole earth.

This, in Nebuchadnezzar's vision, was pictured in the stone, taken out of the mountain without hands, miraculously, which smote the image in its feet and then became, itself, a great Mountain or Kingdom, and filled the whole earth.

Anticipating thoughts in the minds of his hearers, Pastor Russell claimed that Christendom has been astray for some time on this point; that it has declared Christ's Kingdom as already existing. The kingdoms of Europe unitedly are called Christendom, which means Christ's Kingdom. But alas! said the Pastor, how untrue! The kingdoms claim upon their coins to be reigning by the grace of God, yet the Bible says that they are "kingdoms of this world," and that the great ruler is "Satan, the Prince of this world."

The Church Is the Kingdom.

The Pastor claimed, however, that the Church is the Kingdom of Messiah, in an embryotic state. It is the Kingdom of heaven suffering violence, as Jesus said. (Matthew xi, 12.) The King suffered violence, His Apostles suffered violence, and all of His faithful followers since then have suffered violence. This lesson, to endure violence as good soldiers, is one of the tests of loyalty upon the called and chosen, who, proving faithful, may become joint-heirs with Jesus in His Messianic Kingdom.

As the glorified Jesus is to be the Great King, the Great Priest and the Great Judge of the world during the thousand years of His glorious reign, so the elect Church, gathered from every nation, people, kindred and tongue, are to be under-priests, under-kings and subordinate judges. The Kingly Office will be for the ruling, controlling and subduing, with authority and power; the Priestly Office will be exercised for the blessing, encouragement, instruction and assistance of all who will avail themselves of the glorious privileges of that time to become perfect men and to attain everlasting life.

The title of Judge is a comprehensive one; it includes the giving of a trial as well as the passing and execution of the sentence at the close. The trial Day for the world will be a thousand years long. (See II Peter iii, 7, 8.) St. Paul says, "God hath appointed a day in which He will judge the world in righteousness." He also advises us, "Know ye not that the saints shall judge the world?"

POULTRY

FOWLS FOR EGG PRODUCTION

Good, Strong, Vigorous Birds Are Required and Should Not Lay Many Eggs In Pullet Year.

Good, strong, vigorous birds are essential for egg production. The simple fact that a hen has laid 200 or more eggs in her pullet year is not sufficient to warrant her being used as a breeder. I have seen a number of 200-egg hens, with long, narrow heads and sunken eyes, which indicate low vitality, and, moreover, have tested a number of them as breeders, and have yet to see one that was worth while breeding from, judging from the performance and living powers of her offspring, says a writer in an exchange.

A hen used for breeding, especially for the producer of males to head the breeding pens the next season, should not only be expected to lay a large number of eggs per year, but these eggs should be high in hatching power and the chicks should live, and, furthermore, they should develop into good-sized birds quickly and the pullets should lay well. Perhaps it might be well to give here the method that is used by us in breeding from selected layers.

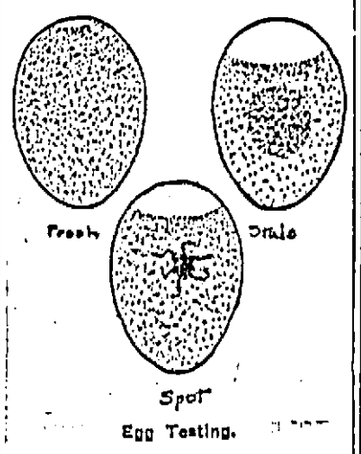

The hen is required to be a good winter layer and to lay at least 150 eggs in her pullet year. The next requirement is that her eggs hatch well—that is, it is expected that over 80 per cent. of the eggs will be fertile and 90 per cent. of the fertile eggs will hatch. It is then required that 90 per cent. of the chicks will live to five months of age and that the cockrels at this age be well developed and weigh—if from general purpose breeds—at least six pounds each, and, finally, that the pullets be good layers. If the pullets lay well during the fall, then I consider holding their brothers as breeders. We try as far as possible to test the males along similar lines, as to producers of plenty of strong pullets and lay well. There is probably as much difference between males as there is between females.

CANDLING OUTFIT FOR EGGS

One Can Easily Arrange Satisfactory Apparatus Out of Piece of Tin and a Lamp.

(By BERT COHN.)

Any person can make a candling outfit easily and cheaply. A cylinder of tin large enough to fit over a kerosene lamp or lantern or a piece of ordinary stove pipe is sufficient. This should have a hole cut in it about the size of a silver dollar, cut so as to stand opposite the flame of the lamp or lantern. The candling can be done in ordinary light, but better work can be done in a dark or semi-dark room. As a general rule if the egg shows clear, or in other words, if you can see through it, it is good. If it contains one or more dark spots, dark lines or dark rings, it is bad, and should be thrown away. If it is several days old, and has an air space at one end, it is not bad, but can be sold. The produce dealers receive the eggs as seconds. If you cannot see through the eggs they are bad and should be thrown out. Some perfectly fresh eggs may show dark lines or rings. These are caused by unhealthy hens and the eggs are not good.

Commission Man's Opinion.

It is a good plan to write to your commission merchant far in advance of shipment, and ask his advice as to the best method of packing fruit as he knows his market much better than you do.

Grape Boxes.

Grape boxes should be covered with wooden strips if they are to be shipped by train. For the local market they can be covered with fly netting to keep insects from injuring them.

MISSIONARY REFUGEES

REFUGE MISSIONARIES FROM CHINA.

San Francisco.—A large number of missionaries, refugees from China with their wives and children, have arrived here on the liner Manchuria. It was the largest number of refugees brought home by any steamer since the trouble in China began. Most of them were here from interior points in the Flowery kingdom and nearly all of them suffered hardships in the journey to Shanghai, where they boarded the Manchuria. There were 20 children in the party and many of the children were infants in arms. Three of them had the whooping cough.

According to these returning refugees the greatest hardships for the missionaries in China is the present scarcity of money. When the revolution broke ordinary facilities of business were suspended. Merchants refused to cash checks and bank notes ceased to be legal tender. As the missionaries did not have a supply of silver dollars, the only kind of money that really talks in China today, and as their funds usually were drawn from distant sources they found themselves shut off from friends and without money. From official sources most of them finally received transportation to some place of safety, but many of them, still in China, are in hard financial straits.
